Pelicans and Flowers.
Indian Salesladies.
Is China Unconquerable?
Let's Keep Our Gold.

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, April 11.

TWO NIGHTS on the train from Chicago to the Pacific. Three nights from New York. Just now the train is crossing from Arizona to California over the Colorado River that will supply water, power and fertility from the Hoover Dam, at Boulder Canyon.

PELICANS AT the river's edge, look solemnly over their beaks at the passing train. They have lived near the railroad bridge, fishing in the muddy waters all winter, watching hundreds of trains, knowing about them as little as the average American knows about his government.

AT NEEDLES, Indian ladies that sell bead necklaces, bows and arrows and pottery seem dimly conscious of a depression. Their salesmanship has fallen off.

One, middle-aged, with a bright red shawl, and jet black hair, pokes painted toy bows and arrows at you with a determined look that says:

"Have some sense and buy it."

Her competitor, very old, hair white, smiles the benevolent smile of age, and does not try so hard.

A FEW HOURS more through Barstow, Victorville, San Bernardino, most of the way downhill, to Los Angeles, where this will be put on the wire.

If you had telescope eyes and could look around the earth's curved surface, you might see from a Los Angeles roof, Japan, China, old Asia with its "yellow peril" 7,000 miles across the water.

If you think Asia will again come marching against the West, this time with airplanes and submarines replacing shaggy ponies of the old days, you may find comfort in the war between China and Japan.

Japan, hungry for Chinese land, increasing China's bitter hatred, may keep Asia busy and no menace to the West, as hatred between Mohammedans and Hindus keep India safe for England.

MRS. PEARL S. BUCK, who wrote the sensationally successful book, "The Good Earth," cables from China to Cosmopolitan Magazine for May, just published, her belief that Japan can never conquer China.

Daughter of a missionary, she has lived in China all of her life, and knows the country. Genghis Khan and other Tartars have conquered China and Japan inflicted a humiliating peace on China not long ago, but, says Mrs. Buck:

"China absorbs and conquers her conquerers. The Chinese know their strength in the end. The whole Japanese nation could be put into China and lost."

Her last words concerning the Chinese-Japanese war are these:

"It may cost Japan its life."

PARIS POLICE have arrested a woman, accused of conspiring to force down prices of stock exchange securities. Wall street would need a big prison to imitate that.

The lady arrested is one of many in France, buying to undermine the American dollar.

Why does not this country absolutely forbid exportation of gold, as it did in the war? Washington now has in its vaults billions of dollars worth of gold. We should keep that and gradually absorb more gold without letting any of it go.

If we owned and announced our intention to keep half or three quarters of all the gold in the world, our dear friends across the ocean could hardly say that we were "off the gold basis."

YOU CANNOT help comparing our finance, industry, and this great country, itself, with ancient dinosaurs that grew so big they could no longer defend themselves.

It may be said, without any "bolshevist tendency," that the American government has been in reality not a government by the people, but a government by organized money, which has done fairly well in the past. But now that organized money is frightened out of its wits by its own folly and greed, it no longer knows what government orders to give and there is no leadership.

SIMILARLY THE stock exchange, kicked and cuffed around, the value of its seats falling 80 per cent, is evidently unable to protect itself against short selling rats that would sink the ship and get away with their share of the plunder. The Phoenix Gazette prints from Washington the interesting news that "stock exchange shorts had organized a one billion dollar market raid" which would have made yesterday the "Black Saturday of all trading history."

This plan, according to the Phoenix Gazette, was interrupted by the Senate decision to investigate stock exchange dealings, especially those of bears that conspire to knock down prices.

YESTERDAY GERMANY held her presidential election, Hitler, youn; imitation Mussolini, running against the aged Von Hindenburg. CITY MERGES FORCES FOR RATE CUT

Municipal Officials Join With Citizens' Groups In Concentrated Drive

The fight of Pittsburgh residents for lower electric light rates and that of the city asking a reduction in the furnishing of street lighting will be combined, city officials agreed today after a conference with representatives of the Duquesne Light Company. This announcement was made by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and Councilman W. Y. English at the close of the conference, held behind closed doors in Lang's office.

Both men agreed it would be better for everyone concerned if one concentrated effort were made for a general reduction in the furnishing of electricity. Lang and English several days ago asked for a flat 20 per cent reduction in street lighting costs, meanwhile holding up the five-year contract for lighting the streets.

Lang also announced that the light company had agreed to make a survey of all street lighting with the idea of standardizing the lights. Among those present at the conference were Lang, English, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, his first assistant, Charles P. Lang; G. W. Ousler, general manager of the Duquesne Light Company, and Joseph McKinley, vice president in charge of sales for the utilities company.

Another conference is to be held later this week.

EBEN M. BYERS' WILL FILED

The will of Eben M. Byers, wealthy Pittsburgh industrialist and society figure, was filed for probate today. It contained but two sentences and read:

"I wish all my estate left to my brother, J. F. Byers, and my sister, Mrs. J. D. Lyon. This revokes any other instructions in existence at this time."

The will was dated January 27, 1927, and was written on a piece of correspondence paper, bearing his Pittsburgh home address, 905 Ridge avenue.

Byers, who was president of the board of directors of the Byers company, South Side, left an estate conservatively estimated at $400,000 in personal property and $150,000 in realty in Pennsylvania, New York, South Carolina and West Virginia.

Byers died in a New York hospital on March 31, following a long illness. He had been taking a radium water treatment for nearly two years.

J. Frederick Byers and J. Denniston Lyon, brother and brother-in-law, were named administrators of the estate.

Connecticut Fishing Lure for Coolidge

SIMSBURY, Conn., April 11.—(INS.)—The Connecticut fishing season will open with distinction Friday.

Former President Calvin Coolidge, an angler of note, has accepted an invitation from former United States Senator George P. McLean to do a bit of fly-casting on the McLean estate here on that dated. Mrs. Collidge will accompany him here.

False Burglar Alarm Calls Police to Bank

The flashing of a burglar alarm in the Farmers National Bank, Fifth avenue and Wood street, during the noon lunch hour, assembled all the bank officers in the banking rooms until it was discovered that the alarm had been caused by defective wiring. Police and detectives were called. Few persons on the street knew of the alarm.

Hawaii Fights Insanity Plea In Massie Trial

(Copyright 1932 by International News Service.)

HONOLULU, T. H., April 11.—With all the power at its command, the Territory of Hawaii moved today to place Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, American society woman, and three compatriots, behind prison bars for the "honor slaying" of a native.

Deftly, his plans shrouded in secrecy, Clarence Darrow, one of the greatest lawyers of the age, prepared to counter the case that Prosecutor John C. Kelley will place before a polyglot jury.

The government has marshalled its witnesses, and testimony was ready to be taken aimed to show that Mrs. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and two naval enlisted men abducted Joseph Kahahawai, a half-caste, and shot him to death.

HONOR SLAYING

Kahahawai, a few months previous to his shooting, had stood trial accused as the leader of five hoodlums who attacked Mrs. Massie. The case ended in a hung jury. His killing, it was charged, was an attempt by the four Americans to do what the law had failed to do—wipe clean the slate of a woman's honor.

Apprehensively the city of Honolulu, shaken by the attack on Mrs. Massie and the tragic

DAYLIGHT TIME BEGINS APRIL 24

A proclamation calling upon the people of Pittsburgh to begin the observance of daylight saving time April 24 was issued today by Mayor Charles H. Kline. The proclamation follows:

"As a result of 14 years continuous experience the people of Pittsburgh have established a custom of observing daylight saving time in the activities of this community. The custom is dictated partly by the necessity of adjusting the interchange of business between this and other large cities, and partly to give opportunity to all classes of people for evening recreation.

"The wisdom of this practice having been thus demonstrated, it is apparent that it should be continued, and I, therefore, recommend that all persons adapt themselves, their business and their affairs hereto for the same period as heretofore, namely from Sunday, April 24, 1932, until Sunday, September 25, 1932. The office hours and the daily employment of city officers and employes will conform thereto."

Gloria Names Baby 'Michele Bridget'

LONDON, April 11.—(AP.)—Gloria Swanson's baby daughter will be named Michele Bridget, it was announced today.

The baby was born last week at the home of Miss Swanson and her husband, Michael Farmer, wealthy Irish sportsman, here. Miss Swanson had expressed a desire for a boy whom she could call Michael.

Exchange Head Denies Bear Raids, Lays Crash in Part To Talk About Prosperity

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Hoover and Republican leaders who boasted that a "permanent era of prosperity" had arrived in America, were partly responsible for the tremendous inflation which led to a crash that wiped out hundreds of thousands of investors, Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, declared today before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Opening the Senate inquiry into recent bear raids in the market, Whitney charged the political statements of administration leaders were "more responsible" for the inflation than all the sales talks of brokers.

NO BEAR RAIDS

Whitney denied any knowledge of reports that a huge bear raid had been organized to smash prices last Saturday. Incidentally he declared there were no bear raids on the market any more, describing sharp selling campaigns as "mere liquidations."

Whitney agreed with Senators the value of stocks during the period of inflation were not justified by business conditions. He added though America was being "given away" now during bad times.

"Didn't the value of stocks exceed the level justified by their business?"

Whitney replied:

"Yes, the pendulum swung too far that way. Just as I now believe the public today is trying to give these United States of ours away."

BLAMES G. O. P.

The highlight of his two hours appearance as a witness probably came when he blamed the administration for allegedly helping to inflate stocks. Senator Morrison (Dem.), of North Carolina, developed this trend of the inquiry by asking:

"Is it not true that high-powered political statements issued during the boom period had a great deal to do with so many thousands of investors being caught in the crash?"

"Yes sir."

"Didn't these political statements that poverty was gone forever from our country; that there would be two cars in every garage; that the poorhouses had been dismantled and that prosperity was here to stay have more to do with inducing people to enter the market than all the sales talks of brokers?"

Whitney replied:

Young Mother Disappears; Kidnaped, Declares Mate

RICHARD, 4, TRYING MANFULLY TO QUIET BROTHER GENE, 1½..... MOTHER MISSING

TWO SULLIVANS STAY ON TICKET

Patrick Joseph Sullivan, East Liberty carpenter, will continue to battle Congressman Patrick Joseph Sullivan for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Thirty-second District. According to an Associated Press dispatch from Philadelphia today, the Supreme Court reversed the Dauphin County Court which had ordered the carpenter's name dropped from the list of candidates.

The carpenter was put in the race in State Senator James J. Coyne's battle against the incumbent Congressman, it is said. Suit was brought in the Dauphin County Court to strike off the carpenter's name and when a favorable result was obtained there, the case was appealed to the Supreme Court. Today's decision means that the carpenter's name will remain on the primary ballot designated as a carpenter while the other is listed as Congressman."

Rowland, Film Head, Appendicitis Victim

WIFE VANISHES IN PAJAMAS

Mrs. Eva Rath, 22, and the mother of two children, disappeared from her home, 1322 Laketon road, Wilkinsburg, early today wearing only a pair of green pajamas and a light coat.

Her husband, Carl Rath, 25, believes she was kidnaped by burglars whom she surprised at their work when she went to the kitchen to prepare food for her youngest child, Gene, a year-and-a-half old.

Rath told Wilkinsburg police he and his wife reached home last night about 1:30 a. m. and went directly to bed.

Three hours later, he said, he was awakened by Gene's crying and went to the room across the hall where his wife and the two children—the other child is Richard, 4,—slept.

His wife was not there, he continued, but he saw a light downstairs and believed she had gone to the kitchen to get the baby some milk.

He returned to his own room but when the baby continued crying, he said, he went down stairs.

The lights were on and the front door open, he said, but there was no trace of his wife.

Investigating, Rath, who is an ice truck driver, found that his wife's clothes were all in her room except the green pajamas which she had worn.

He and a friend searched the neighborhood for three hours, then notified the Wilkinsburg police.

The husband said he and his wife never quarreled and that she seemed normal when she retired.

He advanced the theory that, awakened by Gene's cries, she had gone to the kitchen to prepare milk, surprised burglars at work in the lower part of the house and been overpowered by them. He said the intruders probably had taken the coat not only to protect her from the cold, but to make her presence in their car, if one was used for the escape, less conspicuous.

Rath described his wife as a brunette, with hazel eyes, 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 109 pounds.

Mrs. N. L. Curnow, 419 Rosedale street, the girl's mother, said:

Harry Thaw Sued For New York Rent

NEW YORK, April 11.—(AP.)—A suit for $3,750 against Harry K. Thaw for rent on an apartment from last August to the present month was disclosed in Supreme Court today when a warrant of attachment against Thaw's property in New York state was signed.

The plaintiff, the 1136 Fifth Avenue Corporation, alleged the lease was signed by Aloysius J. Connolly, who the complaint says, is Thaw's private secretary. He sub-let the apartment to Thaw, who took possession in November, 1929, the suit maintains.

FLIER SURE KIDNAPERS GOT CASH

Ransom Note's Code Shown Genuine; No New Contacts Made; Suspect Released

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 11.—(AP.)—The sign of the double cross flamed across the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case today.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has paid $50,000 for his stolen child—but the baby, if alive, is still in the hands of the kidnapers.

Col. Lindbergh still hoped for eventual return of the child, however, and continued his private efforts even after giving the authorities the numbers of all the notes comprising the $50,000 he paid as ransom.

Since the ransom was paid "Jafsie" notes have appeared in the papers reading:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please, better directions."

REVEAL OTHER NOTES

"Jafsie" whose signature has been appended to several advertisements since the kidnaping 41 days ago, has been revealed as Dr. J. F. Condon, Sr., 72-year-old welfare worker and teacher.

At the same time it was learned from an authoritative source that Col. Lindbergh has received at least seven notes from the kidnapers other than the original ransom note which was left in the nursery and which demanded $50,000. The notes, the source said, were sent first to Col. Henry Breckenridge, counsel for Col. Lindbergh, in New York. They bore the markings of the original.

The second note, it was asserted, raised the ransom to $70,000 and the subsequent communications contained no other demands. It was stated later that the kidnapers specified the ransom would be raised to $70,000 unless it was paid before April 8.

The date on which the ransom was paid was not disclosed, but the Treasury notice to bankers asking notification if any of the given serial numbers fell into their hands was dated April 6.

STILL HUNT GANGSTER

The morning bulletin today from the New Jersey state police reiterated the previous assertion that only the real kidnapers could have furnished the identification on which the ransom was paid. This was in answer to a query raising the possibility that some intermediary might have unwittingly passed the identification mark on to persons who had nothing to do with the kidnaping.

The bulletin said also that no further contacts with the kidnapers had been established, and that there was "no foundation" for the report that Col. Lind-

Stork Braves Storm On Lighthouse Visit

HULL, Mass., April 11.—(AP.)—The sea-going stork which had for two weeks hovered over Boston Light on lonely little Brewster Island alighted today and left a daughter, her seventh child, with Mrs. Ralph C. Norwood, wife of the assistant keeper. Mother and child were said to be doing well.

Dr. Walter H. Sturgis and a Coast Guard crew under Capt. George Joseph braved a northeast storm, accompanied by blinding rain, and put out to the island at 4 a. m. in a small boat. They made a similar journey on the night of March 31, in an even fiercer tempest, when it was thought the birth was imminent.

Ethel Barrymore Colt Fined for Speeding

WILMINGTON, Del., April 11.—(AP.)—Ethel Barrymore Colt, actress, daughter of the famed Ethel Barrymore, was fined $18 last night for speeding. She said she was hurrying to a rehearsal in Philadelphia.

Longer Subway Urged by Lang To Avoid Moving Utility Lines

Council Given Plan to Shift Route from 7th Avenue

Public Works Director E. G. Lang today recommended to Council extension of the proposed downtown subway to circle Seventh avenue by way of Grant street and Liberty avenue.

Seventh avenue, with its network of utility lines underground, has insufficient space for a three-track subway and loading station, Lang declared. Relocation of these lines, he asserted, was virtually impossible even at heavy expense.

The total estimated cost of the revised subway project Lang placed at $5,810,000, including sewer and water line changes and construction of stations. The department's estimate on the plan submitted by Norman F. Brown and Edward Snodgrass, Jr., which calls for a subway in Seventh avenue, was $5,510,500 or $10,500 above the sponsors' figures. The city bond issue provides $6,000,000 for a subway.

No reference was made by Lang to the probable cost of relocating gas and electric light conduits. Utility companies have indicated the expense would be great.

Brown today scored the City Transit Commission for delaying its report on the project, charging that the members have been studying the proposal for eight years and should know its every detail.

Brown declared:

"The Transit Commission has been studying the subway for eight years. The members have every detail of our plans. They should be able to tell off hand what a foot of subway will cost under a certain street. Why are they holding up their report?"

Transit Commission Scored by Brown For Delay

The Transit Commission will not make a report before the end of the week, according to official sources. Many civic organizations are waiting for the Transit Commission's report before deciding their attitude.

All parties interested in the subway plans have insisted that an agreement must be made with the Pittsburgh Railways Company to operate it before work is started.

3-Day Rain Ceases, Hoover To Open Baseball Season

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(INS.)—The American League will formally open the 1932 baseball season today with a clash between the Senators and the Boston Red Sox unless it is raining at 3 p. m.

It has been raining here for three days and this morning a drizzle fell, but it stopped before noon.

"Unless we can show that payment of the bonus will benefit the country and promote the general welfare we are not entitled to have this bill passed.

"There are 750,000 able-bodied veterans out of work. There are 75,000 slightly disabled veterans who are out of work. Then there are 800,000 veterans working only one or two days a week.

"There are only 600,000 certificate holders able to borrow who have not availed themselves of that opportunity. This indicates that four-fifths of the certificate holders need the money.

"The question is: Can the payments be used as a vehicle to bring the country back to prosperity? We believe they can.

BUTLER FOR BONUS

Acting Chairman Crisp put into the record a telegram from Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C., retired, favoring the bonus legislation. The Butler telegram said he regretted that he could not attend the hearing to testify in person "in favor of the prompt payment to these citizens of the unpaid portion of the bonus which I feel justly due them." He said:

"I have always been and shall continue to be in favor of this bonus.

"Unfortunately, however, I can not possibly leave the present campaign in Pennsylvania to come to Washington at this time.

"I have traveled through 42 states in the past six months and everywhere find the soldiers in great need of assistance. The nation owes them this return for their services."

With Apologies to Lewis Carroll

Alice: but you all know Alice—the little girl who followed the white rabbit, followed him into a hole, then fell down, down into Wonder Land and of course you remember the adventures she had. You read them when you were a child. Maybe you read them again when you were grown and found that you had missed half the story the first time.

We shall take the liberty of borrowing a few of Mr. Carroll's characters and shall lead them through a series of new adventures in Utility Land.

Alice did not have to fall down a rabbit hole to go through a looking glass to get to Utility Land. Utility Land is the entire United States and her adventures can be duplicated in any city.

Alice was just wandering. She had slipped away from her sister, which was very naughty of her, and was trying to find her way along an unfamiliar path. She walked what seemed to her a long way when she came upon two strange creatures.

One she recognized as her old friend, the Gryphon. The other was a mournful creature she did not know. It was weeping and sobbing.

"I have never seen such an unhappy creature," said Alice. "What is it?"

"It's a Mockservice Corporation," said the Gryphon.

"And what is a Mockservice Corporation?" she asked.

"It supplies you with all the juice to light your house, run your washing machine, heat your sister's curling iron and toast your bread for breakfast," the Gryphon replied.

"How lovely! But why is it so sad?"

The Gryphon yawned.

"People are so ungrateful! Just because the Mockservice Corporation earns more money each year than in the year before they think the prices it charges should be cut."

"Is the Mockservice Corporation so very poor?" Alice asked.

"Yes, the poor thing has had such a hard time that it can barely support the dozen holding companies that own it."

"Does it have such a large family?"

"Oh, yes," the Gryphon answered. "It has tremendous responsibilities. The Mockservice Corporation is owned by a holding company and that holding company is owned by another holding company and that holding company is owned by another holding company and that——holding——company——is——"

Here the Gryphon fell asleep and Alice had to shake him.

"But tell me," she asked, "does the Mockservice Corporation have to have so many holding companies?"

"Oh, no, he wants them."

"But why do we have to help the Mockservice Corporation take care of them?"

"Child, you ask such foolish questions!" the Gryphon exclaimed.

Alice was silent for a minute. Finally she gathered up courage enough to ask:

"If we keep on buying more washing machines and more electric irons and help the Mockservice Corporation to earn more money, why shouldn't we have a share? Why shouldn't he charge us less?"

But the Gryphon became furious.

"You don't understand the great service he is doing you," he screamed. "You don't appreciate how self-sacrificing the Mockservice Corporation is. He has to support a dozen holding companies that bought stock in each other at bull market prices and you want to quarrel about the rates he charges. You are a most unreasonable child!"

Poor Alice was so frightened that she ran back to find her sister.

SENATE HEARS PROTESTS ON TAX BOOST

Contest Against Higher Income Levies Appears Vain; Tariff Rates Up

WASHINGTON, April 11.—While an impending tariff war threatened to overshadow other tax disputes, the Senate Finance Committee met today to hear protests against the sharply increased income taxes imposed by the House to help balance the budget.

The contest against the House income tax rates appeared futile as prospects favored an increase of the income surtaxes in the Senate. A Democratic-Insurgent coalition will seek to raise the maximum surtax from 40 per cent, as approved by the House, to 50 per cent, with the rates increasing on incomes in excess of $100,000 up to the maximum rate on incomes in excess of $1,000,000.

ACTION APPROVED

There was a wide approval of the House action in slashing income tax emptions in order to bring a larger number of citizens into the tax-paying class. The House reduced the married persons exemption from $3,500 to $2,500 and the single person's exemption from $1,500 to $1,000. These slashes were favored in the Senate.

The normal income taxes adopted by the House probably will remain unchanged in the Senate. These were 2 per cent on the first $4,000 of taxable income, 4 per cent on the next $4,000 and 7 per cent on that income in excess of $8,000. It seemed likely the committee would approve the House plan for imposing surtaxes on income in excess of $6,000.

LIMITED SALES TAX

A limited manufacturers' sales tax, higher surtax rates and a tax on the income of tax-exempt federal securities was urged by Chester H. Gray, legislative representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Gray said his federation opposed a general sales tax of manufacturers' excise tax, but would support a limited manufacturers' sales tax on a few luxuries. He urged a maximum surtax rate of 65 per cent, to apply to incomes of $5,000,000 a year or more.

Gray opposed legislation that would tax all transactions on the produce exchanges. He asked that actual sales be exempt, but that the House's proposal be levied against speculative trading.

PROTESTS BIG ESTATES

John A. Simpson, of the Farmers' Union, urged taxes which would help bring about a redistribution of wealth and protested against single estates of as much as $2,000,000,000. This led Senator Reed (Rep.) of Pennsylvania to ask:

"What reliable information have you that anybody is worth $2,000,000,000?"

Simpson responded:

"It's in the papers every day."

Pressed by Senator Shortridge (Rep.) of California, as to whether it is Mr. Ford, Mr. Rockefeller, or who, Simpson said:

"The Mellon family is said to be worth over $2,000,000,000."

Reed, who comes from Pittsburgh, the home town of the Mellons, said:

"They don't think so."

Simpson added that he understood the Mellon family controls $8,000,000,000 more.

U. S. ASKS BAN ON TANKS, GAS

GENEVA, April 11.—[AP]—Abolition of tanks, heavy mobile artillery and poison gas was advocated today by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson in an address to the disarmament conference.

Gibson, ambassador to Belgium and acting head of the American delegation to the conference, said it is obvious that abolition of these weapons can in no sense prejudice any other plan for achieving security. He added:

"On the contrary, the very relaxing of tension which would ensue from a general agreement to do away with these weapons in itself favors further agreement."

In the discussion in the general commission, Sir John Simon, the British delegate, and Dr. Giuseppe Motta, of Switzerland, supported the American suggestion.

BRITAIN FIRM ON OATH

LONDON, April 11.—[AP]—Great Britain has no intention of receding from her position that the oath of allegiance to the British crown must remain a part of the Irish Free State constitution, J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, informed the House of Commons today.

The members cheered as he threw down the gauntlet to Eamon De Valera, the Free State president, who has asserted his determination to abolish the oath and to discontinue payment to England of the Irish land annuities.

His statement was a reiteration of the British thesis first set forth two weeks ago in answer to De Valera's formal notification of his intentions.

ENNIS, Irish Free State, April 11.—[AP]—President Eamon De Valera, of the Irish Free State, vigorously restated yesterday his position that his country would stand firmly for abolition of the oath to the King and against payment of land annuities. He in a vigorous speech he said:

"Ireland is not a British colony; it is one of the oldest nations in the world, with all the rights of nationhood. At this moment statesmen have a great opportunity. All they need is courage to be just and abandon an insane ambition to dominate the Irish people."

GERMAN UNITY VICTORY AIM OF HINDENBURG

Drive Begun to End Power Of Hitler After Defeat At Polls by President

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service

BERLIN, April 11.—Re-elected to the presidency of the Reich for another seven years, President Paul Von Hindenburg today received the congratulations of his supporters in his palace on Unter Den Linden.

At the same time Socialist leaders moved swiftly in an attempt to crush Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, and Hindenburg's chief opponent in yesterday's run-off election, by pressing for proscription of his so-called "storm troops."

BRUENING TO STAY

Chancellor Heinrich Bruening was the first to arrive at the palace today to tender his personal congratulations to the aged President, who, if favored by good health, will continue to pilot Germany's ship of state until he reaches the age of 91.

In keeping with German custom, Bruening immediately tendered his cabinet's resignation to the President. Hindenburg declined to accept it, thanked Bruening for his splendid efforts in conducting the presidential campaign, expressed confidence in his policies and asked the chancellor to remain in office.

To this Bruening agreed. It was understood he would give up the post of minister of foreign affairs, turning this portfolio over to some career diplomat, and concentrate entirely upon the chancellorship.

President Hindenburg, who polled 19,359,642 votes in yesterday's election, to 13,417,460 for Hitler and 3,706,388 for Ernst Thaelmann, the Communist candidate, issued a brief proclamation formally acknowledging his re-election.

URGES HARMONY

He thanked the people for their confidence and pledged himself to continue to serve the Fatherland and the German people on the basis of non-partisan justice and equality. He said:

"True to my oath, I shall continue to strive for the freedom and equality of Germany among nations, cement internal unity and promote the recovery of business.

"I exhort all the people, including those who voted against me, to bury discord and close their ranks. United co-operative effort is imperative to overcome the disorders, depression and impoverishment of our time. Only united are we strong enough to master our fate. Therefore united we march with God."

As if in answer to the President's plea for unity, Socialist leaders were reported to have demanded Chancellor Bruening take immediate steps to clear up Hitler's "private army" in exchange for their support of Hindenburg.

Charging him with being too lenient in dealing with the Nazis, the Socialists demanded that Gen. Wilhelm Groener be replaced as Minister of the Interior by a "militant Republican" who will lay immediate plans for proscription of the Nazis "storm troops." The Socialists were willing to have Gen. Groener remain as Minister of the defense. Up to this time he has held both portfolios.

Missionary Giffen Dead at Khartoum

The Rev. J. Kelly Giffen, 77, who last summer observed the fiftieth anniversary of his missionary activities, died at Khartoum, the Sudan, on April 6, according to word received in Pittsburgh today. The Foreign Mission Board today notified Pittsburgh offices of the United Presbyterian Church of the death.

Mr. Giffen, a native of St. Clairsville, O., went to the Egyptian mission field in 1881 upon graduation from the Xenia Theological Seminary, and 20 years later was transferred to the Sudan. He returned to the field with his wife last fall after a short furlough. A son, Morrison B. Giffen, lives in Washington.

Matador Franklin Rescued from Bull

EAGLE PASS, Tex., April 11.—[AP]—Sydney Franklin, American matador, was cheered by 7,000 persons at a bull fight yesterday at Piedras Negras, Mexico, across the border from Eagle Pass. Six bulls were killed.

Franklin had difficulty with his second adversary. The enraged animal once knocked the American's cape from his hands, leaving him unprotected in the middle of the ring, but assistance came in time to prevent injury.

Bomb Wrecks Home, Occupant Sought

Peter Gray was being sought today by members of the bomb and arson squad for questioning in connection with the explosion that wrecked his home at 5512 Margaretta street early yesterday. Firemen said $3,000 damage was caused by the blast and subsequent fire. Detectives said they also will question David Meltz, who with his family occupied the upper floors of the building.

Farm Board Quiz Ordered by Senate

WASHINGTON, April 11.—[INS]—An investigation into the "activities and operations" of the Federal Farm Board was ordered today by the Senate without a record vote. Without dissent, the Senate adopted a resolution sponsored by Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, authorizing the investigation to be conducted by the Committee on Agriculture.

PLANE TRAGEDY BALKS ROMANCE

MONONGAHELA, Pa., April 11.—An Elizabeth girl today mourned the death of her fiance, who with a young Gallatin businessman was killed when his airplane crashed to earth on the John Protz farm near the Monongahela-West Newton highway near Webster.

David Hamilton, 28, of Elizabeth, pilot and owner of the plane, and Sam Natalie, 27, of Gallatin, were dead when motorists reached them after their ship caught in a high wind, fell, and buried its nose in the farmland. Hamilton was to have been married next month to Miss Rhea Hepner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hepner, of R. F. D. No. 3, Elizabeth.

Dallas Conaway, 19, of Webster, who saw the plane start its plunge as he drove by, said the flier had apparently underestimated the high wind and had lost control of the light monoplane.

Hamilton purchased the plane two months ago, and before that had flown another. He had been flying for several years and had qualified for a limited commercial license.

COLLEGE GROUP KIDNAPED AND BEATEN ON HARLAN TOUR

FOOD FOR NEEDY DESTROYED BY ASSAILANTS

International News Service.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 11. — Nursing painful welts and bruises, a group of three students and two teachers of Commonwealth College, Ark., today related a story of intimidation and physical attack which accompanied their expulsion from the coal fields of Kentucky.

Escorted out of Kentucky by a delegation of Harlan and Pineville citizens, the college group arrived here last night in their dilapidated automobile. They had gone to the coal fields to investigate conditions and give food to striking miners.

Gathered in the office of a local newspaper, the students and teachers narrated their story to Safety Director Walter Anderson, Judge John Randolph Neal, a number of Knoxville citizens and newspapermen.

BEATEN BY CROWD

Lucien Koch, youthful president of Commonwealth College, who led the expedition, said that Mayor Brooks and Chief of Police Osborne had requested them to leave Pineville. A group of citizens then kidnaped the Commonwealth party and forced the students and teachers to drive to the state boundary line, according to Koch.

Before reaching the state line, Koch said, the college automobile was forced into a side road, where it was made to halt. Each student and teacher, in turn, were taken out of their automobile and severely beaten. Harold Coy, a teacher, was the most seriously injured. Bruises covered his entire back and shoulders, Koch said.

The young college president declared there were six men in an automobile which followed the investigators' car. He said all six could be identified by their victims, although he could not give the names of any of the alleged assailants.

FOOD DESTROYED

Koch said:

"We never were permitted to distribute any of the food we brought in our car. The crowd cut the ropes which held the parcels of food to our running board. Much of it fell to the ground and was wasted while our tormentors shouted taunting remarks at us."

After listening to their story, Judge Neal invited the students and teachers to be his guests at his hotel for the night.

Anderson guaranteed them protection in Knoxville so long as they refrain from any disturbing demonstrations.

CROWDS CHEER DARROW

HONOLULU, T. H., April 11.—(INS.)—"I feel 10 years younger, and I have been given a new outlook on life."

These were the words of Clarence Darrow, master head of the Fortescue-Massie defense counsel, as he prepared to enter court today for what may be the climax of his great legal career.

Darrow referred to the thrills that he gained yesterday through surf boat riding, under the tutelage of Duke Kahanamoku, famous swimmer, at the world-famous Waikiki beach.

The noted lawyer was warmly cheered by both whites and natives when he appeared at the beach. Although he is defending four Americans accused of the "honor slaying" of a native, the beach boys showed no resentment towards the gray-haired master of the law.

Darrow appeared at the beach clad in a bathing suit and swathed in turkish towels. He entered a power craft with Kahanamoku and obviously enjoyed the thrills he found in the pounding surf.

When he returned to shore he was urged to match his swimming skill against the Duke's, but he laughingly declined.

The scene of the trial was a dingy courtroom in the ancient "Hall of the Chiefs," famed in Hawaiian history and now known as the Judicial Building.

Immediately under the block tower of the building, seen alike by the defendants, by the jury recruited from the four quarters of the world, and by prosecution and defense lawyers, is a solemn statement of King Kamehameha the Great. It is in Hawaiian and appears carved in the stone facing. Its translation reads:

"The law of the land is preserved in righteousness."

The law was broken when Kahahawai was killed, the state will charge. The law was never upheld when the attackers of Mrs. Massie went unpunished, the defense undoubtedly will reply.

SCORES 'LYNCH LAW'

Prosecutor Kelley will open his case with a direct appeal to the jury, and then start in motion a parade of witnesses and evidence. He has sounded the keynote of his case with the assertion that it must be carried on "to the end that lynch law will never again rear its head in Hawaii."

His chief witness is Edward Ulii, half-brother of Kahahawai, who saw the abduction of the half-caste from the steps of the building where the four Americans are now standing trial.

Perhaps even more potent than the story that Ulii will tell will be the effect of the "silent witnesses" that Kelley has gathered. His exhibits include a bloodstained sheet in which the body of Kahahawai was wrapped when it was taken from an automobile driven by Mrs. Fortescue. A revolver, the wrist watch of the dead native, and some bits of rope with which Kahahawai was bound round out the material things that Kelley will hold before the jury.

NO EYE WITNESSES

The government, as far as has been learned, has no eye witness to the murder, and there may lie one of the weak spots in the case at which Darrow could well direct his legal weapons. The crafty Darrow has already hinted at the possibility of a defense based on "reasonable doubt."

But the case that Darrow will offer has as yet to be disclosed. It will probably depend in no small degree on the case as presented by Kelley.

Two eminent psychiatrists of the mainland, Dr. Edward H. Williams and Dr. Thomas J. Orbison, have been brought here by Darrow, suggesting a defense of "emotional insanity," the legal term for the "unwritten law."

The government may well seek to combat such line of attack on Darrow's part by seeking to place in evidence a certificate showing that Mrs. Fortescue was granted a permit to carry a .32-caliber revolver on December 18, three weeks before the death of Kahahawai. This, it was contended, would reveal premeditation.

Twenty-six witnesses are available to the prosecution, but it was not considered likely that more than a dozen would be needed to round out the government's case. Others may be called in rebuttal, but indications were that the prosecution would be finished within a week.

BATTLE OF EXPERTS

The defense, too, may well be brief. Should the psychiatrists be called, however, the prosecution will counter with experts of its own, and the legal battle over the testimony would drag out the proceedings.

The sessions of the court open at 9 a. m. (2:30 p. m., eastern standard time) and conclude at noon. Only one is held daily, partly because of the terrific heat of the tropics, but mostly out of deference to the health of Darrow, nearing his seventy-fifth birthday.

Darrow was in fine fettle and ready for the battle of his life. Yesterday he went surfboat riding at famous Waikiki Beach, dropping all the cares of the case and playing like a child. Friends said that he was looking forward to the proceedings, and was in a most cheerful spirit—indicating, it was rumored, that he may turn the court topsy-turvy with one of his unexpected and sensational plans of defense.

Bank Stockholder's Assessment Upheld

WASHINGTON, April 11. — (INS.)—The Supreme Court today held constitutional an Iowa law under which stockholders of banks can be forced to pay assessments to restore impaired capital.

NICHOLAS AGAIN DEFIES CAROL

BUCHAREST, April 11.—(INS.)—Hopelessly at odds on an affair of the heart, Kink Carol of Rumania and his brother, Prince Nicholas, decided to go their separate ways today.

In a long conference with his brother, Prince Nicholas flatly refused to give up his wife, the former Mme. Jana Lucia Deleti, and Carol remained equally adamant in declining to recognize the morganatic union. A brief official communique said Nicholas had been granted a year's "vacation" from his official duties "for reasons of his health" and would leave Bucharest tomorrow.

Unable to reach a common ground for agreement, all attempts to settle the family dispute were abandoned for the time being. Nicholas will remain technically a member of the royal family and as such will draw a small allowance from the palace exchequer.

To obtain additional funds, Nicholas will attempt to sell his Rumanian estate in the Neamt district for $100,000. He and his wife are expected to live in France indefinitely.

While the conference was in progress, Crown Prince Michael took his mother, Princess Helen, for a drive in his little American roadster.

QUIZ 7 IN GIRL MURDER

WHITING, Ind., April 11.—(INS.)—Seven men were being questioned by police today in connection with the brutal murder of 12-year-old Susan Alberta Knight, who had been attacked and then strangled to death with a length of electric light cord.

The girl's body was found in her room of a lodging house by a roomer who came to awaken her for Sunday school. She was the daughter of the late Rev. Oscar Knight, a Baptist clergyman.

Six of the men detained for questioning were roomers in the house. The seventh, George Ross, admitted that he spent the night in the room of friends who lived in the house. He, as well as the other six men, denied all knowledge of the slaying.

Lindbergh Still Hopeful Despite 'Double Cross' After Payment

bergh had offered to replace the currency he paid with gold.

The police were still looking for Harry Fleischer, purported member of the Detroit Purple gang and Abe Wagner, and the bulletin said that police departments in other states were following their movements.

SUSPECT RELEASED

A man whose name was given as Sylvanian Ortlier and who was taken into custody last Friday by New York police for questioning was released by New Jersey police today after he had proved to their satisfaction he was not a man who had lived at nearby Wertsville, N. J.

Col. Lindbergh's statement last night said:

"At the time the baby was kidnaped a ransom note for $50,000 was left in the nursery. For obvious reasons it was necessary to withhold information concerning the ransom note.

"A means was offered in the ransom note of positive identification of the kidnapers thereafter. Subsequent notes received were identified by this means and at he time the ransom was paid over the kidnapers used the same means to positively identify themselves as the ones who had carried off the baby.

"This is the only means by which Col. Lindbergh can know for a fact that he is dealing with the kidnapers. It has been withheld and will be withheld by Col. Lindbergh for future identification.

"It must be remembered that the baby has not been returned and it has been and still is the policy of the state police authorities that the primary motive is to accomplish the safe return of the baby and all efforts are and will be bent in this direction."

GO-BETWEEN HOPEFUL

The money—nearly 5,000 bills—was paid some time before April 6.

Just where the representatives of the kidnapers were contacted was not announced. Today's Daily News says the rendezvous for the payment of the ransom money was the Long Island Aviation Country Club at Hicksville, L. I., and that it took place a week ago Sunday.

The News says those present at the meeting with the kidnapers' representative were Col. Lindbergh; his close friend and adviser, Col. Breckenridge; John Fogarty (a private detective) and a representative of Dr. Condon, Sr., author of the "Jafsie" advertisements used in an effort to negotiate with the abductors.

Condon, who picked the signature "Jafsie" because it sounds like his initials, J. F. C., was reported today as undiscouraged at the failure of the kidnapers to return the child. He indicated that the spot designated for the return was off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., and he pointed out that the waters there were alive with Coast Guard and rum running boats at the time set for the return. He was not surprised, he said, that the kidnapers declined to risk being caught.

Curtis on Secret Lindy Trip to 'Talk Turkey'

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

International News Service.

NORFOLK, Va., April 11.—Teetering between consummation and breakdown, the fate of negotiations seeking return of the kidnaped Lindburgh baby through three Norfolk men, rested today in a weird rendezvous of law and outlawry.

John Hughes Curtis, shipbuilder and chief of the negotiators, planned to meet a representative of the purported kidnapers to "talk turkey." The meeting promised all the symtoms of a crisis.

Today's move was of an emergency character. It had its inception in announcement Saturday night that Col. Lindbergh had paid a ransom of $50,000 had not received his baby, and consequently reported to federal authorities the serial numbers of the bills he turned over as ransom.

The three negotiators here indicated plainly they knew nothing of the deal, and said openly the development added to their own difficulties.

DEAN DISMAYED

Curtis got Lindbergh by telephone, and then announced he would leave for a conference with him Sunday morning. Later, he arranged for a meeting with one or more agents of the purported kidnapers.

He left here in a Navy plane about 8:30 a. m. Sunday, facing a rough weather trip north. His whereabouts since are unknown.

Curtis' hardest job today, it was indicated here by International News Service, lay in convincing the men he is dealing with they can trust him. The Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ's Episcopal Church and one of Curtis' two associates, feared publication of the identifying serial numbers of the bills Lindbergh turned over in the futile attempt to get his son back would "scare off" the men he, Curtis, and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, third of the negotiators, are dealing with. He said he was still optimistic, but did not seek to hide dismay at the new development in the case.

Admiral Burrage has been out of the city since Saturday, but Dr. Dobson-Peacock said he was "visiting friends."

'JAFSIE' LINK REVEALED BY LINDY TALK

Fordham Educator Shown as Go-Between; Flights to Get Stolen Baby Futile

WASHINGTON, April 11.—(AP.)—The Evening Star today said that all negotiations for return of the Lindbergh baby, leading up to a "tragic trick" by the kidnapers on April 2 centered about Dr. John F. Condon, elderly Fordham University professor, and that an amazing story could now be revealed because Col. Lindbergh himself has spoken.

Dr. Condon, the Star's account said, was the "Jafsie" of a series of 13 advertisements through which Lindbergh communicated with the abductors of his son.

THREATEN BABY'S DEATH

Lindbergh obtained a complete set of the child's fingerprints from toys and furniture in the nursery and demanded a set from the kidnapers, but this was refused, the story added.

At one time it went on, the abductors expressed dissatisfaction with publicity regarding the case and demanded $70,000, instead of $50,000, but the colonel, through Dr. Condon, was able to reduce this to the original sum.

The ransom note, the story continued, threatened death to the child if the police were called in.

The first contact with the kidnapers' negotiators was said to have been established by Dr. Condon and Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's attorney, on March 16 in an obscure spot on the shore of Long Island Sound.

DEMANDS C. O. D. PLAN

Lindbergh would not agree to the kidnapers' first proposal that the money be left in a certain place and the baby be returned several days later to permit the abductors to escape. As stated in one of the "Jafsie" advertisements, he wanted it to be a "C. O. D." transaction.

Another meeting took place March 24 in the ghostly surroundings of a cemetery and the next day "Jafsie" mentioned receipt of a package "accepted as the real article" and apparently containing some article by which to identify the baby.

The final agreement was that the money would be paid by Col. Breckenridge that eight hours would elapse without word from the gang and then a message would be sent revealing the child's whereabouts.

Late on the night of April 1, Lindbergh, Breckenridge and a third man believed to have been John Fogarty, private detective, left in Lindbergh's car, carrying two black suitcases and heavy wraps. The money presumably was in the bags.

PLANE HUNTS YACHT

Just where they went is not known, the story related, but it said the money is believed to have been turned over to a representative of the kidnapers on the following morning. That day the advertisement "Yes, everything O. K." appeared and was taken to mean the money had been paid.

The promised message came, saying the baby could be found on a boat off Cape Cod. April 3 and 4 Lindbergh, Breckenridge and a third man were seen flying in the vicinity of Martha's Vineyard. They were looking for a yacht named Sally or Nellie, but they did not find it.

Tuesday slipped by with no word and last Wednesday the climax was reached, Lindbergh's anguish, the story said, was voiced in the advertisement:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please better directions."

VERONA MURDER TRIAL OPENS

Matt Hadok, of Youngstown, O., was placed on trial in Criminal Court today charged with the murder of Charles McFarland, cashier of the Allegheny Valley Trust Company, Verona, December 6, 1930, in a $1,000 holdup.

Hadok's alleged accomplice, Mike Mamula, also of Youngstown, was granted a severance and will be tried at the conclusion of Hadok's trial. The two were captured in Rankin several months ago and are alleged by county detectives to have been identified by Verona residents as the holdup men.

vision for reparations, should give the nation a new start. The French announce that they will not pay us any of the billions they owe, unless they get the money from Germany, and apparently dear old foolish old Uncle Sam will have the pleasure of paying the reparations for Germany.

AS WE SHALL get nothing from France, except a good warning against foolish sentimentality in war, why not send a commission to France to learn how the French do things, and bring back valuable information? The unemployed would like to know how it happens that a Frenchman can buy bread for half what it costs in the United States.

American farmers would like to know how farmers in France get at least one dollar and a half for every bushel of wheat produced. Our farmers get thirty cents on the farm, and wheat sells at about sixty cents a bushel after railroads and middlemen get through with it. costs SIX DOLLARS when the bushel is made into bread. Nobody in France can make flour unless it contains a certain percentage of wheat grown on French soil.

The government regulates that percentage and regulates, as it has done for years, the price of bread.

WRITING ON the train quoting from memory, dating far back, which should never be done, this writer attributed a line of Schiller's to Goethe. He apologizes to Schiller and to Goethe and thanks Mrs. Margaret Blum, Carl J. Oppenheimer and others quick to correct the mistakes. When twenty or thirty millions see what you write, your sins and mistakes are sure to find you out.

Muldowney Takes Blow From Ex-Coyne Aide

Ill feeling in the Republican congressional primary of the Thirty-second District, and the division in the element once loyal to Senator James J. Coyne, was emphasized yesterday by a tattoo the fists of P. F. (Paddy) McKnight, former Coyne follower, played on the person of Councilman M. J. Muldowney, Coyne's candidate for Congress against P. J. Sullivan and John M. Morin.

The physical damage was slight, the two men being quickly separated, but the political reverberations are great.

The bout occurred in front of McKnight's home, 2327 Fifth avenue, and was caused by a meeting held last Wednesday in Lithuanian Hall in honor of Sullivan. McKnight was one of those present, as was John Verona, Third Ward leader, which considerably pained Muldowney. Yesterday he saw McKnight sitting in an automobile in front of the McKnight home, and remonstrated.

McKnight's explanation was a hefty right, which was to have been followed by a left and perhaps some more rights, but two of McKnight's friends stopped the fracas. Today McKnight had this to say:

"I'm sick and tired of Coyne shoving guys on me I don't want. People don't want Muldowney and are getting tired of him. There's only about 1,000 in the ward for Muldowney, but a lot more will vote for him because Coyne demands it."

$1,134,363 Eaden Added With [illegible] of 832 Jobs; 175 Raises Granted

HARRISBURG, April 11 — (AP) [illegible] news [illegible] Various [illegible] acknowledged increases in the [illegible] employes in the [illegible] 24 [illegible] this and explanations [illegible] Governor [illegible] salaries [illegible]

In [illegible] said [illegible] of Revenue [illegible] payroll [illegible] the payroll [illegible] to Mr. [illegible]

Outside [illegible] Legislature [illegible] department [illegible] employes [illegible] with annual salaries [illegible] compared [illegible] 49 employes and a payroll [illegible] on January 2.

MANY MORE SPEECHES

He said [illegible] had been added [illegible] any increase [illegible] for the [illegible] asserted [illegible] employes [illegible] He said:

"At least three times as much mail is received and answered by my office as by the office of Gov. Fisher. Five times as many speeches are required of me as of Gov. Fisher. The number of business callers is many times greater, and they must receive the attention they have a right to expect.

"Unemployment relief and other new problems make much new work. Even with additional employees the Governor's force constantly works overtime. Commonly I work from 8:30 in the morning until 6:30 at night.

DEMANDS INCREASE

"The truth is that the people of Pennsylvania have increased their demands upon their Governor particularly during this period of depression. I would be glad to operate my office with one stenographer as governors once did, but it cannot be done. There is not one unnecessary employe on my payroll."

Saying he was not responsible for personnel [illegible] payroll increases in the Auditor General's and State Treasurer's departments, which are not under his jurisdiction, the Governor asserted increases in departments under his jurisdiction were made only when necessary to do work assigned by the Legislature.

OTHER PAYROLLS GROW

The State Treasurer and the Auditor General's department both increased their personnel and payroll totals [illegible] 14 months in greater proportion than departments under the Governor's jurisdiction, he said. The Governor added:

"No reason is given for these large increases. These two departments had no new duties."

The Governor said pay increases totaling $2[illegible] for 85 employes in departments under his jurisdiction were granted in comparison to 69 pay increases in the Auditor General's department and 21 in the State Treasury.

PROBE OF VOTE LIST ORDERED

A grand jury investigation of alleged fraudulent registrations in the Thirty-first Ward prior to the September primaries was ordered today by Judge Elder W. Marshall on petition of District Attorney A. T. Park.

The probe is scheduled to open Thursday in an attempt to disclose the identity of the higher-ups.

Twenty-five witnesses who appeared before the Registration Board will be subpoenaed before the grand jury, Park said.

The 25 many of them Negroes, are alleged to have been registered after taking an oath that they had lost their tax receipts when, as a matter of fact, it is said, they never had any receipts.

Independents Open Campaign on Radio

Deputy Attorney General Hugh H. Smith, Allegheny County chairman of the Independent Republican organization, will open a five-day radio campaign with an address at 6:30 tonight over WJAS. Mary Elizabeth Lawrence, candidate for a delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention, is scheduled to speak at 6:30 tomorrow night over WJAS.

E. J. Wade, Republican candidate for the State Senate from the Forty-third District in opposition to the incumbent Senator James J. Coyne, is expected to broadcast at 8:45 tomorrow night over KQV.

Cigar Plant Burns, Fear Manager Dead

MOUNTAINEER, W. Va., April 11. — (AP) — Ashes of a small stogie factory were [illegible] sifted today for traces of Chas. Buzzard, 41, manager of the plant. The missing man was last seen Saturday night near the factory. His automobile was found disabled in the Wheeling business district 12 miles away.

Police said they suspect Buzzard may have been the victim of foul play and that the fire yesterday morning may have been incendiary.

Actors Help Women Launch Relief Drive

RITA CAVALIERY

Stage Show Marks Rally for Harris Plan Tomorrow

Stage folk will play a large part in the program at the mass meeting of the women's division of the Family-Help-Family Plan at the Nixon Theater tomorrow afternoon.

At the invitation of Mrs. Frank Lee C. Irish, chairman of the women's division, stars of the stage and screen playing in Pittsburgh this week will appear in connection with the launching of the women's campaign for funds.

Representing the stage will be Eugenie Leontovich, star of "Grand Hotel;" Jimmy Durante, motion picture star; Dan Barclay, musical comedy star, and his stage show unit will also appear.

The 16 Stanley Steppers, Jerry Coe, accordionist, and Jones and Howell comedians will present a complete show. Senora Rita Cavalieri, radio star, will sing several numbers and a wood wind ensemble presented by Milton Lomask will complete the program.

Speakers will include Senator Frank J. Harris, Judge Sara M. Soffel, the Rev. I. A. O'Connell, Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson and the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty. A. K. (Roxy) Rowswell will be master of ceremonies.

DAVIS TO TALK IN SOMERSET

Senator James J. Davis, seeking a full term, is scheduled to address the Somerset Chamber of Commerce at a dinner Wednesday night and later will talk at a rally of the state committee in Johnstown. He will be accompanied by State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, running for auditor general; Auditor General Charles A. Waters, candidate for state treasurer, and Arthur H. James, seeking a place on the Supreme Court bench.

Baldwin, Waters and James are due in Pittsburgh Thursday for meetings in North Side Carnegie Music Hall and a mass meeting in Homestead. Davis will be represented at those meetings by his state campaign manager, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell.

April 23 Davis is expected to visit his parents in Sharon, from where he will broadcast a speech over a state-wide hook-up.

AWAIT LEWIN'S BANK REPORT

A report of the negotiations between the reorganization committee of the closed Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company and the State Banking Department will be made at the second mass meeting of the depositors of the bank tonight in the Woolslayer School, Forsyth street and Liberty avenue.

The report will be given by Dr. A. L. Lewin, chairman of the banking committee of the Arsenal Board of Trade, which is sponsoring the reorganization meeting. He will tell of his conference with Gov. Pinchot and Dr. William D. Gordon of the State Banking Department.

PINCHOT DENIES PAYROLL LEVY

HARRISBURG, April 11 — (AP) — Asserting his vigorous opposition to political assessment on state employes, Gov. Pinchot today said any financial contributions from state workers to the Independent Republican campaign fund will be made voluntarily.

He said that every state worker is free to give or not to give and urged those who can afford a contribution to be attributable to defend the commonwealth against the Vare-Martin outfit.

He charged the Vare-Martin people with levying forced assessments of 2 and 3 per cent of their annual salaries on city, county and other employes.

Quits Assembly Race In Fourth District

Harry J. Krall, produce merchant, has withdrawn as candidate for the Legislature from the Fourth District and has asked his friends to support Leonard P. Kane, according to a statement issued by Krall. He declared:

"I desire to announce to my friends that in withdrawing I favor the candidacy of Leonard P. Kane who, I think, will ably represent the district. I would appreciate any support given him by my friends."

Capital Cherry Trees Nearing Full Bloom

WASHINGTON, April 11. — (AP) — Despite the unseasonably cold weather, the Nation's blossoms of the capital's Japanese cherry trees will be in full bloom Wednesday.

Legion to Bury Last Man of G. A. R. Post

The American Legion tomorrow will conduct the funeral of Capt. William McLaughlin, 84, last member of Gen. Charles Giffin Post No. 207, G. A. R., of Homestead. Capt. McLaughlin, for years a riverman and later a Courthouse employe, died last week in St. Petersburg, Fla. The local G. A. R. post was disbanded about a year ago with only two members left. Both of those men are now dead. Funeral services will be held from an undertaking establishment in East Eighth avenue, Homestead, with interment in Homestead Cemetery.

British Prince Denies Slav Crown Offer

LONDON, April 11 — (AP) — A member of the staff of Prince Arthur of Connaught, nephew of King George, said a report that he would be offered the crown of Jugoslavia was not true.

The Sunday Express said it understood that a delegation of Jugoslavian deputies was coming to London to make such an offer, and that the present King Alexander did not feel any too secure on the throne.

Canaanites Held Deserving of Destruction

BALTIMORE, April 11 — (INS) — Those old Canaanites deserved destruction at the hands of Joshua, Dr. Melvin Kyle, president emeritus of the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary, said today as he prepared to take a staff of archaeologists to study the Palestine ruins mentioned in the books of Joshua and Judges.

Shake goddesses found in the ruins, he said, give conclusive evidence of such degraded religious practices among the Canaanites that the command for their destruction was merited. They flourished about 2000 to 1600 B. C., Dr. Kyle said.

More Than 1,000 Specimens Of Artists' Here Shown At Annual Exhibition

By PENELOPE REDD

Wizards [illegible] have [illegible] more spectacular [illegible] advertising [illegible] bition in Pittsburgh, Western Penn. Here [illegible] through April 16.

While [illegible] extend [illegible] tions to [illegible]

Miss Redd

layman will probably respond to the spontaneous [illegible] and vivid quality in [illegible] to those expressions of technical achievement [illegible] effective use of text.

COLOR ADVERTISING

Newspaper advertising registers the most significant progress within the past year in the color printing of the magazine distributed with the Sunday paper. Several full-page ads foreshadow the quality that is certain in this widely distributive medium.

Many of the designers whose work appears in the daily papers are concealed by the phrase "staff artists." Some names, however, are attached to uncommonly interesting work. Harry Rumette defeats monotony in his designs of men's clothing. Rowena Kostellow has a [illegible] brilliance in a still-life arrangement of umbrellas. George Sherman, with a Persian wickian [illegible] characteristic cruises about among the commonplaces of life in terms that indicates his potentialities as a national humorist.

DESIGNER IMPORTANT

In the [illegible] of national advertising, the series for the Aluminum Company, prepared by the Gardner Advertising Company, proves the importance of the designer. Artists have been artfully selected for decorative, abstract and realistic appeals. Nathaniel Pousett Dart, Lurelle Van Arsdale Guild, Ike Clark and Benrimo, in pen-and-ink style visualize the beauty in the use of aluminum.

Trade papers generally have less imaginative settings. Some, however, are excellent such as F. G. Ackerson's drawing for Westinghouse's New Meter, and Hilda Volkommer's pottery studies for the Vitro Manufacturing Company. Koppers Products' explanation of "Insulation" was ably emphasized in abstract design by the Pitt Studios.

Of the dozens of house organs the two most striking of the "external" group are "William Penn Points" and "Money and Manners." The "internal" group provides astonishingly contemporary typography and format in the bulletin of Reliance Life.

FEW TRICK SHOTS

There was little in the shots in the way of the modernistic, such as the "angle" and other trick shots employed for photographic illustrations. To the layman one of the impressive facts is the number of technicians required before the printed message reaches the public. Client, agency, artist, typographer, engraver and printer—all contribute in this highly co-operative art. Perhaps this combination will lead advertising even from the two dimensions of ink on paper into the contemporary world of form.

Pittsburgh's advertising show is on the whole a little on the solemn side. This may reflect the town's limited and fundamental industries as compared with the more diverse, lighter industries of many other cities.

One of these rugs is the hand-woven Sarouk from which the other, a Chinari, was copied. Look closely—can you tell the difference?

Exhibition and Sale of Chinari Reproductions

American-Made Duplicates of Expensive Oriental Carpets

Hear the Story of Rug Weaving—

Mr. Chester Bigelow will lecture informally tomorrow and Wednesday at 11 A. M. and 3:30 P. M. on "The Story of Oriental Rug Weaving."

Mr. Bigelow will tell how Oriental rugs are laboriously knotted by hand, and how the Chinari copies are made. All are invited.

Chinari rugs represent the nearest approach that American mills have come to reproducing the glorious colors, lustre and feel of Orientals. They are Bigelow rugs, products of one of the oldest makers of highest grade floorcoverings in the country.

Chinaris are wash-proof, fade-proof and will hold their lustre as long as the most expensive Oriental. Colors are clean and clear. Patterns are woven through to the back.

To show the faithfulness of Chinari reproductions, there will be on display tomorrow comparisons of Orientals and their reproductions, as pictured above. Come and see them.

Should Love Wait Until Ted Finishes Law School?

But they're both still going to school, and if they do their respective families would stage a riot and stop their allowances.

So what shall they do?

Or shall they step out boldly and let the families rave?

"Dear Sally Martin:

I am writing to you in the hope that I may receive some advice from your readers. I am a girl [illegible] that has just graduated from high school and is looking for work. I am [illegible] versity and am really desperate. I have thought over my problems for weeks without being able to decide what to do.

I am terribly in love with a boy who is [illegible] his first year at law school and he is just as much in love with me. You know what a strain it will be before he finishes and gets a start in his profession, and we want to be married soon.

I don't know what to do. I have a job that pays me $18 a week, from which I can save $40 a month. Ted has an income of $100 a month. If we were married I would stop school and just work and keep house.

PARENTS WOULD OBJECT

We would almost have to be married secretly because neither of our families would approve. I can see the way pretty clear so far as money is concerned, but I am afraid getting married would estrange us from our families.

We think we love each other enough to be willing to sacrifice anything in the world and that in time our families would see it our way, but I am not sure. I wouldn't want to be deliberately disobedient, but how can we wait six or seven years for each other? It doesn't seem fair to expect it.

Should we, perhaps, be capable of waiting that long? Or are there any other solutions?

SEEKS ADVICE

There are so many arguments pro and con that I am past the stage of [illegible] my problem, and there is no one else that I can ask to please don't fail me. I will be waiting for your answer. I know there must be others facing a problem like this one. I wonder if they would tell me what they did. What shall I do?

Loretta."

And, kind folks, what shall Loretta do?

Must she wait while love grows old?

Or shall these two start their life together right out before the world and let it and the old folks say what they will?

How about it? Did you ever meet a problem like that?

If so, what did you do with it?

Not Any Life Is Really Dull Though It May Appear So to Many—Fay King

LIFE LEAVES ITS RECORD UPON FACES, AND NOBLE HISTORY CAN BE READ IN AGED FACES
EVERY LIFE IS AN INTERESTING STORY
MY STORY
SOME LIVES, LIVED WITH SUCH A FORCED FLOURISH AND PRACTICED POSE, ARE NOT ACTUALLY AS INTERESTING AS THOSE THAT SEEM SO OBSCURE BY CONTRAST
FAY KING

By FAY KING

It has been said that there is one book in every human being—the story of his life.

But the average person is reticent about telling his own story. It does not seem important to him, because it has all happened so casually in the course of time.

Yet if he read the story of his own life from beginning to end, written by someone else and by another name he would find it a narrative both interesting and entertaining.

Every life is like a serial story continued from day to day. There is interest, color, adventure, sorrow, love, aspiration and disappointments in all lives.

Not any life is really dull though it may appear so to those who do not penetrate its outer shell.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Most Deformities Are Due to Early Neglect of Rickets

Science has found ways to prevent the marked deformities which were so common in former years. Unfortunately, however, curvatures of the spine, bowed legs and [illegible] knees are still by no means uncommon and this is particularly true among children in the crowded districts of our large cities.

Dr. Copeland

Rickets is a chief cause of such deformities. This is known to the doctors as a deficiency disease and is due to the lack of certain indispensable substances in the food. It is found among the age of four months and [illegible] but at any age it may appear. The sufferers of the bones is [illegible] deformities of the head and of the soft bones especially those of the ribs.

The first symptom of rickets in a baby is an [illegible] appetite. The stomach sometimes [illegible] but at times acts as the entire body. The mother notices that the child [illegible] and is at a loss to account for the fact.

Soon the baby becomes restless at night and is irritable and cries when handled. If these danger signs are neglected the muscles become flabby and the abdomen protuberant and indigestion, constipation or bronchitis may develop. Weak thin flabby children are most frequently the sufferers from rickets but fat overweight children are not free from it by any means.

Lack of sunshine is a great factor. A child cannot prosper with poor hygienic home conditions while a diet deficient in vitamin is considered responsible in many cases for these symptoms. The winter season with its bad weather and absence of sunlight furnishes by far the larger number of cases.

It used to be claimed that artificially fed babies were more likely to have the rickets than the breastfed. Observation has not borne out this theory.

The prevention of rickets is far easier than a cure. If sunshine is not to be had one of the sunlamps will act as an excellent substitute. A treatment at least two or three times a week has proved most helpful to the little patients.

Fresh air and a diet rich in vitamin D are essential to the child's welfare. Vitamin D the "sunshine vitamin" is found in milk, orange juice, eggs and cod liver oil. The diet of the younger babies should include the vegetable water, the "pot liquor." Strained vegetables for the other children are very beneficial.

Cod liver oil should be a part of the routine treatment during the winter months. When advised by a physician viosterol may be substituted.

If a child has rickets or a tendency to it great care must be exercised to prevent deformities. The bones are soft and easily bent, and for this reason it is unwise to encourage a baby to walk or stand at too early an age. Bearing in mind these warnings, bone or severe deformities once developed must be treated by a specialist. They may require braces or even surgical operations.

Briefly, to avoid rickets give baby sunshine, fresh air and a suitable diet. Consult your physician if baby shows any of the signs of threatened rickets.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Reading in a moving train is a strain on the eyes because there must be constant readjustment of vision. Tired eyes are a dreadful facial defect. The soup lanterns are on the job every waking moment. It isn't fair to overtax them. For a quick freshening treatment bathe the eyes in water fairly hot, then apply pads of gauze that have been dipped into an ice cold solution of boric acid.

High speed in reducing, like high speed in living, depletes the constitution, robs the candidate of a lot of her pep, puts sags in her countenance and is altogether a profitless business. One pound a week is enough to lose. The transformation from heavyweight to lightweight can be achieved by self-denial closing the eyes of all those good stands that contain fats, starches and sweets, concentrating on fish, lean meats, vegetables that grow above ground, and green salads. Two hours out of doors every day, no cat naps and plenty of water. There you are.

Prehistoric woman, who had her feet solidly on the ground, who crept up rocky cliffs to her cave, probably knew nothing about weak ankles. She may have had housekeeping difficulties, but she wasn't sentenced to endure high heels, and so could propel herself in comfort. The common cause for ankles that lack strength and muscle tone is the spiked heel which throws the bones of the foot out of alignment, puts a strain on the back muscles of the leg. When women are really emancipated from fixed ideas concerning appearance, there will be fewer foot ills, and walking will be a part of every woman's health-and-beauty schedule.

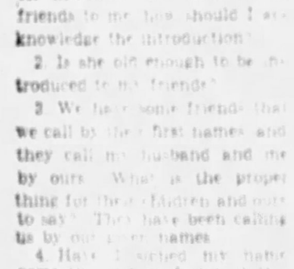
Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Listen to Partner

One of the most disheartening things in the game is to have your partner disregard your warnings, especially when you can go game and he cannot. The hand shown below illustrates this by a recent happening.



Z had a hand probably worth something in excess of seven tricks with hearts as trumps so he opened with a semi-forcing declaration of 2-Hearts. His partner's hand had a probable value of three tricks plus at no-trumps but of doubtful value at hearts, so Y took out with 2-No Trumps. Z's six hearts looked good enough to justify bidding 3-Hearts which was perfectly proper.

When Y bid 3-No Trumps he was right. Z was wrong when he refused to listen to his partner's second warning. Z went to 4-Hearts and Y passed. The opening lead was of course the K of clubs and two tricks were won in that suit. Later in the play one trump trick and one diamond trick were lost also defeating the contract by one trick.

Had Z allowed the game bid at no-trumps to stand, see what must have happened. The opening lead would have been the 2 of spades and 2 would have been in the east.

The five opposing hearts probably [illegible] between opponents so that Q 10-9 missing would mean that at least one [illegible] must be [illegible] lead a small spade to Y's [illegible] rights with A and diamonds. A would win the heart lead with his Q and return a small lead of spades which his K but the next lead of spades would go to Y's Q purposely [illegible] to hide his possession of the J. If Y ventured to lead a small diamond, finessing dummy's J and losing to the K, A would be crash. If he did not take his two club tricks before leading back a spade as one space one heart, one diamond and two clubs would defeat the contract. If Y had his wits about him he would first take his two spade tricks, dummy's five heart tricks and the Ace of diamonds as these eight tricks with the one spade previously won in dummy would fulfill his game contract.

The next hand was played at no-trumps by B. The opening lead was the 4 of spades. How many tricks can be won against the best play of Y-Z? The answer will appear tomorrow.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Introducing Children

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When my 8-year-old daughter introduces her little school friends to me how should I acknowledge the introduction?

2. Is she old enough to be introduced to my friends?

3. We have some friends that we call by their first names and they call my husband and me by ours. What is the proper thing for their children and ours to say? They have been calling us by our given names.

4. Have I spelled my name correctly and do I sign it this way on school excuses?

MARY SMITH
(Mrs. JOHN H. SMITH)

1. Say: "How do you do, Florence." [illegible] of. How do you do" is the best way to acknowledge any introduction for nine years or so. The addition of "Miss Jane" is always gracious "Mr." is the usual name for an older person of course.

2. Yes, for children of all ages, after they have any recognition of what an introduction means it is correct. This gives them early in life the social recognition that they should have and gives them that precious quality of "social accustomedness."

3. By no means should these children call you by your first name. They should use the formal name: "Mrs. Graham . . . Mr. Graham."

4. Yes, this is correct both for this letter and for school excuses. You may, if you wish, use the [illegible] name of your maiden name in the direct signature: "Mary Browne Smith," and you may spell out the middle name of your husband's name.

Watch that "COLD" GERM run!

The Mustard Treatment drives him out before he settles down

GET right into a cozy tub of steaming water with Mustard mixed in it . . . and in the morning all the "cold" germs that gave you aches and "sniffles" will be gone!

It's a homely, old-fashioned remedy, and doctors still agree that it is scientific, up-to-date, and much safer than internal dosing.

As soon as you feel a cold coming on, put four heaping tablespoonfuls of Colman's Mustard in a cup of cold water and blend into a paste. Pour this into a tub of hot water, mixing well. Then hop in. What gentle warmth, what relaxation! No hurrying . . . just a cozy, wrapped-in-wool sensation. And then, what untroubled sleep!

When your children have cold symptoms, give them a mustard tub or foot bath. They benefit from them just as much as adults do.

Be sure you get Colman's because it is absolutely pure, and rich—as mustard properties. At all druggists and grocers.

BOOST FOR STARRETT

Another ex-football player who has made good in Hollywood: Charles Starrett. The former Dartmouth athlete was cast the [illegible] lead in George Banfield's next picture, The Challenger. In case you follow such [illegible] remember, it's from Ralph Graves' novel. Ralph Graves Scott was to have played the part. Now Paramount plans to feature Starrett in The Lone Cowboy.

Settlement to Offer 'The Mystic Return'

On May 5 the Green Room Studio of the Irene Kaufmann settlement will present the premiere performance of "The Mystic Return," written and directed by Alfred I. Goldenberg, local playwright. Mr. Goldenberg's plays have been produced at the Theresa I. Kaufmann Theater as well as over KDKA and WWSW. "The Mystic Return" is based on the execution of a notorious pair and its psychological effects upon the minds of the general public.

Mr. Huston in Demand As Luncheon Speaker

When actor turns lecturer he's liable to walk into a lot of grief. Walter Huston debated on prohibition with Aimee Semple McPherson, spectacular Los Angeles evangelist, as a result of discussion over "The Wet Parade." Since then he's had requests from some 20 organizations to speak at luncheons, debates and meetings and has been asked to lecture on subjects ranging from politics to the care of children.

Thelma Todd Cast With Marx Brothers

Thelma Todd, Sheila Mannors, Capt. E. H. Calvert and Ed Le Saint have joined the cast of "Horsefeathers," starring the Four Marx Brothers. Harold Hecht, Broadway dance director, will handle two dance ensembles in the film.

Mr. Cohen!

George Sidney, known far and wide as Movie Kelly's friend, Cohen, comes to the Penn stage Friday for a personal appearance.

Chester Morris Stars In Harris Film

"Cock of the Air," starring Chester Morris, is the new feature at the Harris. This is another variation on the soldier boy in Paris devoting all his attention to the love game. Morris is seen as an American aviation officer, who fails for Billie Dove in the role of an operatic singer. Walter Catlett and Matt Moore are in the supporting cast. The screen also offers a Buck Jones western, "High Speed."

'Ladies of Jury' Now In Sheridan Square

"Ladies of the Jury," starring Edna Mae Oliver, will end a three-day engagement in the Sheridan Square tomorrow night. It is a comedy drama. Among the supporting players are Roscoe Ates, the stuttering comedian, and Ken Murray.

Enright Screen Offers 'Alias the Doctor'

"Alias the Doctor," starring Richard Barthelmess, opened a three-day engagement in the Enright Saturday. Marian Marsh is the girl. In this one Barthelmess, under a cloud of suspicion, travels from the farm to the heights, becoming a great surgeon and then lands behind the plough again. The locale is Austria.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

THE BOY WAS on trial for stealing a luxurious automobile. It was the usual courtroom scene in the city of New York. The attorney for the defense was asking all types of impossible questions. The accused boy was attempting to look very sorrowful. The jury was doing its best to appear interested. And the judge kept stealing side glances at the clock on the wall. If he was late again, that dame was bound to give him the air.

It was all a waste of time because it was evident from the beginning that the youth was guilty. This wasn't the first machine he had stolen, but he had been fortunate enough to beat the previous raps. But now the game was up. You had but to look around the courtroom to convince yourself of that. The only one who looked in any way hopeful was the defense attorney—and that was only because the fee had been guaranteed.

In due time and only because the judge kept urging him to hurry things along, the boy's lawyer stopped saying a great deal about nothing at all. He sat down, the judge said a few words, and the jury got up. They filed out. And in 10 minutes—or just enough time for one ballot and two cigarets—the 12 men were back again with a verdict of guilty.

Nobody was surprised because the decision had been a foregone conclusion. The judge sat up and prepared to pronounce sentence. But the youth's attorney was not to be shoved aside so easily. He leaped into the situation immediately.

"Your honor," he cried, "may I say just a few words before you pronounce sentence? I want to make a plea for leniency."

The judge looked at the clock again. This was positively the most time-wasting attorney who had ever appeared before him. He'd remember him on the next case.

"Go ahead," he growled.

The lawyer cleared his throat and glanced around. This was going to be good. Too bad there wasn't a reporter around.

"Your honor," he began again, "you have done much noble work in your time upon the bench. You are known all over the state as a man who is able to read character and who will never mete out a severe sentence when there are extenuating circumstances.

"Look at my client. He is scarcely more than a boy and he has the wide world ahead of him. Look at his face. Would you call that the face of an habitual criminal? Ah, Your Honor, how can I put into words the feeling that I hold in my breast?"

In his lap, the judge's fists were tightly clenched. If that dame didn't wait for him, he'd square the account with this lawyer in no small fashion. The thing was getting on his nerves.

Meanwhile, the counsellor was coasting peacefully along.

"It must be obvious to everyone," he said, "that my client took that automobile only as a lark. And, knowing that, it would be most unfair to send him away for any length of time.

"As I brought out most impressively during the trial, the machine that the boy took carried a very low license plate. Obviously, then, the car belonged to a person of some genuine importance in the city. Because the average citizen never gets the chance to obtain plates that are quite as low as the ones on the stolen car.

"Thus, Your Honor, it stands to reason that if my client were in the business of stealing automobiles, he would hardly choose a machine with such a low number. Low numbers are easily detected, and a car thief who knows his business leaves them severely alone. Surely, sir, you will agree with me on that point.

"Accordingly, in view of the many circumstances and the youth of my client, may I respectfully request Your Honor to be as lenient as possible in pronouncing sentence?"

The judge shook his head.

"I have considered everything," he said gruffly, "and I hereby sentence the convicted man to the penitentiary." All of which meant that the thief had been sentenced to jail for a term of from six months to three years.

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders. He made one last stab.

"Well," he said, "as long as Your Honor is determined to do this, may I request one little favor? In view of the boy's age, may I ask that he be sent away with some sort of a recommendation from you?"

The judge arose.

"Certainly," he murmured, "since he seems to go in for that sort of thing and you have brought the matter out so clearly, I'll use my influence to get him a low number!" . . .

* * *

SPEAKING of such things, there's the true tale of the judge and the lawyer who were, in private life, very close friends. One morning, however, when the lawyer was arguing a case before his pal, the judge proceeded to disagree with everything the attorney said. It grew so bad that the lawyer finally stamped from the courtroom, boiling with rage.

Some two hours later, the judge called the attorney on the phone.

"Say," he cried, "what was the matter with you in court this morning? What did you get so excited about?"

"Oh," responded the lawyer angrily, "every thing I said to you was wrong. You objected to my every argument!"

"Well," returned the judge, "why not? We're good friends. But is there any law that says I must be with you on the argument AS WELL AS the decision?"

Mr. Lissfelt

It is with great pride that I shall review the concert of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society in Syria Mosque last night. Modarelli and his men made by far the best music they have ever given us, and the response to their patrons was no less enthusiastic.

The program was of neat length with one of the best concert symphonies. It was a satisfaction to have Modarelli direct this Franck work with such vigor and leave the mysteries aside which sentimentalists like to write into this music.

The Weber overture is merely a curtain raiser, one of the most insignificant of his orchestral compositions. It was played with precision, but Weber himself wrote nothing here that we are likely to remember.

The Moussorgsky work is raw and outside its orchestral color is tiresome. The concert closed with the rousing "Benvenuto Cellini" overture.

Dan Beddoe, one time resident of Pittsburgh and always a favorite tenor in these parts, again proved his method of singing is the everlasting one. In two of the most difficult operatic airs and in two encores, a tender Irish ballad and an air from Handel's "Radamisto," he showed an authoritative style, exemplary diction and good, straightforward singing. His voice still has a sentimental appeal and his entire bearing is that of the happy troubadour.

Vesper Concert Sacred Heart Church

Yesterday afternoon Organist Bowman and his choir presented a program of Easter and Lenten music as Vesper service in Sacred Heart Church.

The program included many gems of Gregorian and Renaissance church music, with modern contributions from Yon, Cesar Franck, Widor and Dubois.

The choir is especially rich in the lower voices and sings with a strong sense for musical values. It was a reposeful afternoon of beautiful music.

Hungarian Duchess Entering Convent

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 11. (AP)—Archduchess Elizabeth, 60, sister of Archduchess Maria Dorothea, who died last Wednesday, announced today that she was entering a convent.

The sisters had lived a secluded life in recent years. Hence, the death of Maria Dorothea, widow of Duke Philippe, of Orleans, pretender to the French throne, strengthened Elizabeth's desire to pass her remaining days in a convent.

Workers' Wives Force Bread Price Down

AVILA, Spain, April 11.—(AP)—Several thousand workers' wives, aided by the unemployed, made bakers agree to cut their bread prices by a series of noisy street demonstrations here.

The women also demanded lower prices for other commodities, paraded to City Hall, then forced stores to close and refused to disperse until the bakers agreed to the price cut.

3 DIE AS HEAT CROWDS SHORE

LOS ANGELES, April 11. (AP)—Treacherous rip tides claimed the lives of at least two of thousands of persons who went to ocean beaches of the Los Angeles area yesterday, the hottest of the year. A third body, that of a man, was recovered, but it was not known whether he was a tide victim.

Santiago Carrera, 19, Los Angeles, was drowned in the Long Beach section of Brighton Beach. An unidentified man was drowned at Hermosa Beach.

Accompanied by a pounding surf, rip tides resulted in 14 calls for help at Hermosa Beach, seven at Manhattan and two at the County Beach at Manhattan. Guards at Redondo Beach refused to disclose the number of swimmers retrieved from the water there.

Arthur Hill, Actor, Dies in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, April 11. (AP)—Arthur Hill, stage and screen player and impersonator of animals, died here of a heart attack.

He was associated with Dillingham and Belasco in New York. He supported Mary Pickford in the picture, "The Good Little Devil," and impersonated the dog Tige in Buster Brown.

Backed by Davis, Gov. Roosevelt Becomes Moose

NEW YORK, April 11. (Universal)—Another Roosevelt had become a Moose today. But not a Bull Moose. By virtue of an elaborate ceremony in Palm Garden, the Governor now is a brother in the Loyal Order of Moose.

When a reporter ventured to accompany him into the hall, the Governor chuckled.

"Everybody who goes in must come out a Moose."

The reporter suggested that would involve no pain. But the Governor reminded him:

"It will involve $14 a year."

The Governor went in alone. He addressed a convention session of the organization and was offered for membership by Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, the major Moose of the country.

Dry Law Declared 'Not Such a Failure'

SALT LAKE CITY, April 11. (AP)—Hebert J. Grant, president of the Latter Day Saints Church, declared at the closing session of the organization's annual conference yesterday that "prohibition has not been such a failure after all."

His comment was preceded by the reading of a magazine article which stated that drunkenness has become a negligible factor as a cause of poverty since the adoption of the dry law.

Woman Kidnaped, Robbed of $2,000

OTTAWA, Ill., April 11.—(INS)—Mrs. Frank Steinbach, 40, wife of a local merchant, was kidnaped in her own automobile by two bandits Saturday night, taken 10 miles from the city and robbed of $2,000 receipts. She was released unharmed and in possession of the car.

MYSTERY BLAST KILLS FIVE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 11. (AP)—Five persons were killed and two critically injured in an explosion in a four-story brick building in a congested section of the city.

Mrs. Eva Boudry, William Dahdan, Eva Dahdah, his sister, Anna Sady and Mrs. Peter Frangela were the persons killed. Two other tenants of the building, Rose and Eva Karam, were taken to hospitals.

Peter Frangela, husband of one of the victims, was at Boston when the explosion occurred yesterday, and hurried to this city, only to collapse when he learned of the tragedy.

The building was wrecked and the windows of stores and dwellings in the vicinity were shattered. Officials were seeking to determine the cause of the explosion, which they estimated did damage of $100,000.

Noted Homeopath, Dr. Dienst, 72, Dies

AURORA, Ill., April 11. (AP)—Dr. George W. Dienst, 72, former president of the Illinois Homeopathic Medical Association, died yesterday.

Dr. Dienst, who began his career as a medical missionary to Japan, was a founder and first president of the National Foundation of Homeopathic at Washington, D. C.

INDEPENDENT LEGISLATURE SLATE

Smith Gives List Of Indorsements, Platform

Ralph H. Smith, deputy attorney general and Allegheny County campaign chairman for the Independent Republican ticket, has announced the candidates for members of the Legislature in all county districts, excepting the First and Ninth, that are to be supported by the followers of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

Smith declared he had asked McGovern's colleague, County Commissioner C. M. Barr, to take charge of the Legislative campaign and stated:

"Commissioner Barr has consented to assume this task, which is not a light one by any means, and is burdened by innumerable details."

SLATED FOR LEGISLATURE

Third District—Herman P. Eberharter.

Fourth District—John W. Williams.

Fifth District—Dale F. Lies.

Eighth District—Anthony Lucas and Herman Young.

Eleventh District—George L. Ewing and George F. Howe.

Twelfth District—J. R. Herring, H. C. A. Hofacker, E. L. Bladel and R. L. Thompson.

MAJOR PLANKS

Smith announced that the indorsements were were based on selections made by leaders of the Independent forces in the various districts. Major planks in the platform on which all candidates are running, according to Smith, are:

Abolition of the County Delinquent Tax Collector's office, and imposing that duty on the County Treasurer.

Consolidation of the tax revision boards of the county and City of Pittsburgh under the County Commissioners.

Abolition of the Poor Directors' office in the county and the Welfare Department in Pittsburgh, and to consolidation of one department under the County Commissioners.

Legislation limiting all elective and appointive public officials in Allegheny County to salaries only, without any other compensation.

UTILITY CURB

Legislation making impossible the increase in public utility rates until (a) notice of intention to increase has been given the public, (b) an independent audit of the utility company's books has been made by proper officials representing the people; (c) public hearings at which the burden of proof shall rest entirely upon the utility company asking such an increase; (d) final decision by the courts.

Legislation permitting election overseers to serve in any district designated by the court and other election laws that will insure honest elections.

Legislation establishing permanent registration of voters.

Legislation to consolidate the County Election Bureau and the Registration Commission of Pittsburgh into a bureau that shall be charged with the responsibility of maintaining permanent registration and the conduct of elections. That bureau should be composed of five members, two to be appointed by the Governor and three elected by the county at large.

COMPENSATION ACT

Legislation broadening and strengthening the workmen's compensation act.

Amendments to the banking laws that shall insure adequate protection to depositors.

Legislation for relief of unemployment that will be adequate and available when needed.

Continued hearty support of the public school system.

Legislation that will be just and fair to our workers, industries and railroads.

Legislation permitting Pittsburgh to adopt the city manager form of government in accord with the sound principle of home rule.

Re-codification of laws relating to Allegheny County in the interests of increased efficiency, economic management and a greater degree of home rule in county affairs.

Barr to Conduct Campaign for Group

Publishing Company Manager Promoted

Climaxing 50 years service with the R. L. Polk Publishing Company, serving in recent years as manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the organization, Eugene Carmichael has been named to the vice presidency of the organization, and the presidency of the North American Directory Association. During his service with the publishing company he was assigned to open branches in several of the largest cities in the United States.

BARR TO ASSAIL COYNE RECORD

County Commissioner C. M. Barr, acting as leader of the Independent forces while County Commissioner C. C. McGovern is convalescing from a broken ankle, is scheduled to attack the public and personal life of State Senator James J. Coyne at a meeting tonight in the Prick School in Coyne's home ward, the Fourth.

Wayne King, Honeymooner, Scores 'Hot' Radio Music

Radio listeners do not go for "hot" music, it was recently stated by Wayne King, famous orchestra leader, who returned to Chicago yesterday after playing for the Ambassador Club dance at the Schenley Hotel, Saturday night. The fact that people sit at home listening to the radio proves that they want to be comfortable and feel comfortable, he says, in King's opinion.

King said:

"You just sit right and let the public pick its music. Every year it's getting better and better. The public's never wrong in the end. Right now they have the greatest entertainment veto power of all time, and they'll exercise that veto."

King, whose dance orchestra has been heard by millions on Walter Winchell's national network program, which is broadcast over Sun-Telegraph station WCAE, was asked:

"What great change will occur in radio dance music in the next year?"

"None. The public is ready always to have something new, excruciatingly spectacular. But it won't come that way. It will be a steady development into better and better music, richer, and John Public won't know it's happening."

King's pattern for the future was set when he married Dorothy Janis, movie star, in Chicago March 21. She refuses to steal any of the spotlight from her husband's opinions.

"Say, you might tell 'em that Dorothy and I were just rounding off our honeymoon here in Pittsburgh."

King and Dorothy Janis, movie star, were married in Chicago March 21. She refuses to steal any of the spotlight from her husband's opinions.

CONGRESS TO HEAR M'CRACKEN

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

When Harold McCracken addresses the educational department of the Congress of Clubs on Wednesday he will tell the members of an uncommon record of fulfilled boyhood ambitions. He wanted to know more about Indians (as what boy does not?) so he lived among them. He wanted to do daring stunts, so he became a motion picture cameraman. He wanted to go to far places and kill bears and he became the leading hunter on the Alaska Peninsula.

Although he killed bears for many years, it was a long time before Mr. McCracken discovered that it was much more difficult and more fun to "shoot" them with a camera than with a gun.

The apparatus, almost musical comedy-like in its humorous style, which the explorer and his aides used to "shoot" the bears, will be described by the speaker. And he may even tell of his discovery of mummies in the frozen North where he went for the American Museum of Natural History.

Mr. McCracken will share the program with Dr. F. J. Kuhlman, who will tell of "Interplay of Health and Habits in Children."

STRIPED CRAVAT SILK NEWEST FABRIC FOR EVENING FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 11.—It will be difficult to tie a more original idea than that of using cravat silk for an evening frock. Yes, striped cravat silk is the newest fabric to make its appearance after dark and even if you are not particularly enamored of any figured material for evening wear, we think that you are going to like this new idea. It is cool and charming and so should be ideal for summer evening wear as well as an interesting variant from the usual prints.

* * *

SHOULDERS ARE IN retirement this season, although they bear the brunt of carrying much of the smartness of the frock. Ever so many quite formal evening frocks have some sort of treatment that covers the shoulders and then there are the little circular and plain capes and the triangular kerchiefs to completely hide even the whitest of white shoulders. It's rather a refreshing change from the bare shoulders that were part of the design of so many frocks and younger women, particularly, like the informal note that the covered shoulder brings to the evening mode. A silhouette that is rather reminiscent of the Empire period marks many of the newest models, the long, slim, highwaisted line seeming to please most of us.

* * *

WE HAVE HAD sketched for our readers the evening frock that created so much interest when shown at the early spring opening of Mainbocher. It is done in striped cravat silk in white, gray and vivid red. A triangular kerchief of the material ties over the decollete a most fitting note for a dress done in such material. The skirt, moulded over the hips, has a crispy flaring flounce set on midway between belt and hem in a diagonal line. There is a narrow belt of the material which is ribbed like a light weight ottoman.

* * *

THE OTHER EVENING frock, also with a covered shoulder line is by Lucien Lelong, who favors the silhouette that while essentially princess is somewhat reminiscent of the Empire period. Deep violet crepe Birman is the fabric, a heavy clinging type of material. The decolletage is interesting, a deep square neckline front and back with the corners filled in with strass embroidery. Wide, draped loops of the material, laced in and out through slits on the shoulders and front of the armhole, are puffed out over the top of the arm, giving the effect of short puffed sleeves. A subtle draping is given the bodice at the waistline by gathering several folds of the material into minute shirrings at the center front.

252 MORE FAMILIES ASSURED AID IN RELIEF DRIVE

LEFF CHARGES CLARK, WALSH 'RAID' FUND

Accusation Hurled As Police, Fire Veterans Fight Slash In Pensions; Salaries Hit

Director James M. Clark of the Public Safety Department and Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, both executives of the Police and Firemen's Pension Fund, were characterized as "raiders of the fund" yesterday by Louis Leff, retired detective captain, at a meeting of veteran city employes in the City-County Building.

The meeting was called to protest the proposed reduction of the pension to a minimum of $50 instead of $86. Committees were appointed to meet with Mayor Kline, Clark and Walsh.

Leff declared Clark draws $100 a month more than a policeman-pensioner for being solicitor of the fund, and asserted Walsh has changed the by-laws of the fund so he can collect $2,400 annual pension when he retires. Leff also charged that through Clark and Walsh, Chester Morely, fund secretary, was handed a five-year contract at $5,000 a year.

Leff said:

"If the administration would leave the police and fire departments alone and not retire them while they are able-bodied, we wouldn't need any pension fund.

"They retire policemen and firemen not because they are incompetent, but because they are not right politically, and the young men are easier to handle politically than are the old ones."

3 Machines in Sunset Beach Smashup; Woman Hit By Car Here Dies, Boy Injured

John Luch, 22, of 151 North Craig street, fullback on the University of Pittsburgh football team, was injured last night at Sunset Beach, near Washington, Pa., in an automobile accident involving three machines in which a girl and a woman were killed and four other persons were injured.

Julia Wargo, 19, of Canton Township, was killed outright and Ray Houston, 24, Washington, died early today. Others injured were Leslie D. Loughry, 42, Washington, driver of the car in which Miss Wargo was a passenger; Andrew Ernes, 49, Warwood, W. Va.; his daughter, Martha, 20, and Andy Gulyban, 24, Canonsburg, said to be the driver of one car. The injured are in Washington Hospital. X-ray pictures of injuries to Luch's right knee were taken today.

Sarah Marks, 60, of 1007 Middle street, was dead today of injuries suffered yesterday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Klaser, 22, of Queen street, as she stepped from the curb at Middle and Foreland street, according to a police report.

Elmer Lunn, 5, of 431 McManus street, was in the South Side Hospital with a fracture of the right leg, received, police said, when he was struck by a machine driven by Earl Gray, of 15 Calhoun street, at Ormsby and Mathilda streets.

TO DISTRIBUTE AID FUND

Treasury Has Sufficient Money to Start Paying Talbot Appropriation

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Actual disbursement of the $10,000,000 to the various poor districts of the state loomed today following announcement that the state treasury has sufficient funds on hand to make initial payments of the huge sum authorized under the Talbot bill.

This indication of immediate payments to the unemployed and needy grew out of a conference here during the week-end between State Treasurer Edward Martin and Auditor General Charles A. Waters.

The treasury, Martin said, is ready at once to pay and audit requisitions from the Department of Welfare.

Attorney General William A. Schnader also indicated that he would throw no further legal obstacles in the way of prompt distribution, according to word received here.

The declaration of immediate disbursement of the huge relief fund followed pleas by Philadelphia relief workers after locally-raised funds had been depleted.

Harry W. McIntosh, counsel for the Allegheny County Poor Board, said official instructions were awaited from Harrisburg, and as soon as these were received steps to obtain the county's share of the fund would be taken immediately. The City Welfare Department also was ready to act.

HARRIS SPEECH SPURS TEAMS AT LUNCHEON

Canvassers Bring Total of Homes to Be Cared for Up To 1,303; Radio Talks

Two hundred and fifty-two more families can be cared for with the additional contributions to the Family-Help-Family campaign announced at the second report luncheon in the William Penn Hotel today.

This brings the total number families provided for to 1,303. It is estimated there are 28,000 destitute families who must be aided in Allegheny County.

Workers were spurred to further efforts by State Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsor of the plan; William M. Fuley and others. D. M. Craig, commander of the central brigade in the drive, presided.

SPEED CAMPAIGN

Further plans for the action of the right wing, under Thomas Fitzgerald, covering more than 115 communities will be made at a dinner of these workers in the William Penn at 6:30 p. m.

Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsor of the Family-Help-Family Plan, in a radio address yesterday, said:

"The economic crisis is a social situation that touches you directly. Never have we had a more serious problem to solve—and don't make any mistake about it—it is your problem! When the Talbot bill was declared constitutional, many breathed a sigh of relief. No greater mistake ever was made. It is lulling our fears with a false and dangerous sense of security.

NEED OF FUNDS

"At the time of passage of the bill it was estimated that there were 1,000,000 unemployed in Pennsylvania. If this Talbot bill fund was distributed equally among them, it would only mean $10 per person."

WOMEN'S AID ASKED

Speaking from WCAE, Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, chairman of the women's division, asked women of all walks of life to rally to the call and urged them to attend the women's mass meeting in the Nixon Theater at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Necessity for putting the campaign through to prompt success was emphasized in two other radio talks by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church, speaking over WWSW, and by Mrs. Edgar J. Kaufmann, who spoke from the studios of WJAS.

Mrs. Kaufmann emphasized the fact that the burden falls chiefly on the mother of the family, who must see somehow that children are fed and clothed and that the spirits of the family are kept u

FAIL TO FIND 2 IN RIVER LEAPS

Police efforts to find the bodies of the man and woman reported to have jumped from the Sixth Street Bridge into the Allegheny River had not been successful today.

John Ellis, house boat occupant, told police that early yesterday he was awakened when persons on the bridge fired several shots at a man who seemed to be swimming in the middle of the river.

Several hours later, North Side police received a report that a well-dressed woman had leaped into the river from the north end of the bridge.

Pittsburgh Doctor Ends Life With Gun

Dr. J. P. Kirch, 49, of 713 College avenue, ended his life by shooting himself twice in the head in a Fort Wayne, Ind., hotel room, yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Ill health was blamed.

He left here Saturday afternoon with a friend. They parted at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. His body was found by a hotel employe. Dr. Kirch had been in ill health for three years and last January he had undergone an operation. The body will be returned here for burial.

Mystery Blast, Fire Probed in Braddock

Braddock officials today were investigating a mystery fire and explosion which partly destroyed the two-story frame grocery and dwelling of H. Blumenfeld at 1108-1110 Braddock avenue, last night.

Firemen said nearby residents reported the building burst into flames following an explosion in the rear of the store. Damage was estimated at $10,000 by Fire Chief T. K. Martin, of Braddock. The family was absent.

3-Inch Shell Found After Bomb Scare

Detectives today had another relic on display in the bureau headquarters—a rusty three-inch shell similar to the ones used in the World War—after having investigated a report that a bomb had been found near the Jewish Home for the Aged in Breckenridge street. William Shussett, 16, of 2425 Center avenue, found the shell and notified police.

Democrats Can Talk and Fight; Can't Whisper

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

That Jeffersonian dinner in Washington on Wednesday will be the same as the others.

Only the Democrats who talk to each other will be there.

That's the way with the Democrats. The only people they beat to the punch are their own friends.

The Democrats were started 80 years before the opposition. Yet they allow the Republicans to step in and call themselves "The Grand Old Party."

Boy, that's stealing your thunder and selling it back to you as radio entertainment.

The Democrats always did have the best talkers. But the Republicos have the finest whisperers.

If you are ever accused of anything just try to get 12 Democrats on the jury. We guarantee a beautiful disagreement and liberty for you inside of five minutes.

MAN ARRESTED TWICE, INJURED

Taken to Allegheny General Hospital by police for the second time in 24 hours, Edward Muller, 35, of 1204 Steadman street, was in a critical condition today with a fracture of the skull, according to a hospital report.

Muller was first arrested Saturday afternoon and was treated for a laceration over the right eye. He said he had been beaten in a speakeasy at 1013 Strong street, a complaint that resulted in a police raid in which James Pace and six visitors were arrested. Pace subsequently was fined $100.

Muller was arrested the second time in Plush way, and was docketed for being drunk. Shortly after he was placed in a cell, he collapsed, and Turnkey William Pottmeyer and Sergt. Samuel White ordered him taken to the hospital.

3 Youths Questioned In Store Robbery

Louis and Tony Demore, of 444 Williams street, and James Muscio, 16, of Gaskill street, were being held for investigation today in connection with the robbery of a grocery store at 1 Boggs avenue. Police said they became suspicious because the boys had many cigarets. A part of the $85 loot has already been recovered, police said.

Four Boy Cyclists Injured in Traffic

James Harding, 10, of 1702 Montier street, and William Nye, 12, of 1007 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, were in the Columbia Hospital with leg injuries received when they fell from a bicycle and were thrown under a streetsweeper operated by James J. Moran, of 1451½ Finance street, near the Harding boy's home, according to Wilkinsburg police.

Benjamin Rodgers, 12, and his brother, Irwin, 10, of 252 Becks Run road, were in St. Joseph's Hospital today with injuries received when their bicycle collided with an automobile driven by Murray Goldstein, 1321 Locust street, near their home, police reported.

Man Dies as Auto Crashes Into Pole

Clarence Scott, 31, of 140 Station street, McDonald, was killed when an automobile which he was driving struck a pole and overturned at Noblestown road and Dennisonview avenue early today, according to a coroner's report.

The body was identified by a brother, Abraham Scott, of Kearcher street, who told morgue attaches his brother was visiting a girl friend in Pittsburgh last night.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Didn't you see a story in the papers saying that "Russia is going to extract the snow from the clouds before the clouds reach Moscow, thereby relieving the city of having snow." Now that sounds silly, don't it? We all say: "Those darn Russians, they always got some crazy ideas." Then in the next column it says "Hoover and a congressional committee propose to take $200,000,000 from government expenditure." Well, I'll bet you the Russians get the snow out of the clouds before Hoover and Congress get any government employes out of their swivel chairs, but both things sound good in print.

Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers

GIRL WILL SEEK NEW AIR MARK

Marion Eddy, present holder of the world's altitude record for women in a seaplane, will make an attempt to better her own record of 13,461 feet again this summer, she revealed here today. Miss Eddy, well known prima donna, is appearing this week at Loew's Penn Theater. She will relate some of her experiences in the air in a radio interview tomorrow night at 6:15 o'clock over radio station WCAE. She also appears in the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club program on WCAE at 11 o'clock tonight.

Miss Eddy, who learned to fly only two years ago, soloed an amphibian plane after only seven hours instruction. She flew the same ship to an altitude record two months later. Her record-breaking flight was considered somewhat of an achievement with so little practical experience. The seaplane record also was considered an unusual feat, the amphibian ship she used being somewhat heavier than an ordinary light seaplane because of the wheel landing gear equipment carried in addition to pontoons.

STUDENTS URGE U. S. BOND ISSUE

Collegiate opinion on all political problems and issues national and international was heard before the closing of the University of Pittsburgh's model political convention last night in the faculty rooms of the Hotel Schenley.

In eight hours of intensive debating, dry laws were voted abolished with government control of liquor recommended, government supervision of utilities and power was advocated; adherence to the League of Nations and recognition of the Soviet government were urged, and free trade was indorsed.

The depression was blamed on "vicious competition," and for unemployment relief the students advocated a $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the government and a $500,000,000 appropriation for direct relief.

"Tax the rich" was the students' tax policy. A manufacturers' sales tax was opposed. A tax on 2.75 beer was recommended.

A plank calling for national defense was adopted as a compromise between the pacifists and the strong defense advocates.

NEVIN'S MANUSCRIPTS ON SALE

Five Originals to Be Disposed of Here For Widow

Original manuscripts of five musical compositions by Ethelbert Nevin, beloved Pittsburgh composer of "The Rosary," "Mighty Lak' a Rose," "There Little Girl Don't Cry" and other well-known songs, are to be disposed of in Pittsburgh by Mrs. Nevin through Frank Palmer, of 8 Oakland Square, it has been announced.

They are: "At Rest," the last song he wrote, which was on his piano when Nevin died; "March of the Pilgrims," composed for the Knights Templar Conclave in Pittsburgh, 1898; "Mon Desir," a French song dedicated to Madame Emma Eames-Story, American singer; "Nightingale Song," dedicated to Madame Melba; and "Mazurka," composed for Frank Millet, the only mazurka Nevin ever wrote.

Madame Schumann-Heink calls Nevin's "Rosary" her favorite American song. She sang it before the ex-Kaiser at tea one day, she said, and the song was well received by German audiences.

Rupert Hughes calls Nevin a "great composer of great songs." He said:

"Nevin's songs have lyrical contour, lyrical impulses; they come forward in graceful curves, like waves, and when they reach their destination, they rise to their climax and make a beautiful end . . . His very introductions are like those magic bits of stage mechanism by which in the twinkling of an eye a complete scene is set and lighted."

Mrs. Nevin was Anne Paul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Paul, of Oakmont. Ethelbert Nevin occasionally used to play for morning services in what is now St. Thomas Memorial Episcopal Church in Oakmont, which Jacob Paul built in memory of his wife. Mrs. Nevin now lives in New York City.

OFFICERS SAVE GIRL'S LIFE

Wagonmen Louis Lehrman and William Appel of Mt. Washington Police Station, today were credited by Dr. J. A. Soffel with saving the life of Rose Fortunato, 16, of 152 Southern avenue, who was overcome by carbon monoxide gas while bathing in her home yesterday.

The girl's father found her unconscious when he forced open the door of the bathroom after she failed to answer him. The two officers, summoned by the father, administered first aid and revived her after an hour's effort.

Dr. Soffel, who arrived shortly after the police, examined the girl when they revived her and pronounced her out of danger.

Cost of Stork's Visits Here Decrease

Cost of having babies in Pittsburgh hospitals, following the general business trend, has dropped at least 10 per cent during the past year, a survey of hospitals revealed today. At least 50 per cent of all babies born in Pittsburgh hospitals, it was learned, are "free" patients.

One hospital superintendent said:

LUMBER MAN'S DEATH BLAMED ON FOOD

Alfred Mincin Poisoned by Beans Served at Meal in Home, Officials Believe

Deputy coroners today were investigating the death yesterday of Alfred Mincin, 42, president of the Bridgeville Lumber Company, in his home, 789 Academy place, Mt. Lebanon. He is believed to have been poisoned by beans eaten Saturday.

Mincin and a daughter, Ida, 11, became ill after eating a meal at which beans were served, members of the family said. Their condition improved, and Mincin took several of his children to a theater.

He again became ill when he returned home, and Dr. Basile Peroni, of Bridgeville, was summoned. Early yesterday Mincin suffered a third attack and Dr. J. M. Johnston, of 421 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, was called. He pronounced Mincin dead.

The family gave the Coroner's office a sample of the beans for examination. The daughter, it was said, has completely recovered.

Mincin, born in Italy, came here 20 years ago. He was a member of St. Bernard's Church, Mt. Lebanon. He leaves his widow and eight children.

SLOT MACHINES HIT HARD BY SLEUTHS

Murren Reveals 150 Seized This Year; Long Drive Brings $100,000 Seizures

County detectives have made no estimate of the number of slot machines still operating in Allegheny County, Chief George W. Murren declared today, adding that if one is known to be in use, it is the duty of the detectives to bring it in.

A report that 500 machines were still in operation drew fire of the detective head. He said:

"We know officially of no machines in operation. I and my men are under oath to confiscate any such devices. If they find a machine they bring it in. In the last four years they have brought in and destroyed 1,000 machines valued at $100,000.

"Thus far this year 150 slot machines have been confiscated. In March alone machines with a market value of $5,000 were broken to pieces. If any citizen will let us know where a machine is in operation we will seize it."

Flat Tires Win Donation for Tourist

CHICAGO, April 11 (AP). — When Sam Ware's automobile tires went down, his faith in humanity went up.

He was hitting the trail from Philadelphia to Oregon in a shaky car carrying himself, his wife and six children when the tires went flat. He proceeded to fix them while his family made themselves comfortable on a lawn on Hyde Park boulevard in front of the home of Michael L. Igoe, a Democratic candidate for Governor.

A crowd gathered. Sam started to talk. He'd had some tough luck back East and was on his way to a rent free farm at Springfield, Ore. Everybody got sympathetic. Mr. Igoe furnished toys for the children; a policeman collected $20 from fellow officers, and the owner of a hotel furnished the whole family shelter for the night.

SLASHES THREE IN HOLDUP

Wielding a knife, a 60-year-old man fought off and slashed three youths who he declared attacked him and a companion at Larimer avenue early today, according to a police report.

The wounded all in Pittsburgh Hospital said they were Ernest Enggine of 7 Carver street; Andrew Angeb, 21, of 2 Meadow street, and Joseph Braatlandell, 19, of 7 Shetland avenue. They were held for police.

Peter Furero, 60, of Shapespeare street, who police say slashed the trio, and his companion, Harry Glaber, 35, of Second street, Rankin, also were held by East End police.

Furero said the three youths attempted to take his money. The police said they found Glaber's wallet containing $5 in the possession of the suspects.

LAND SET ASIDE FOR GARDENS

Thirty acres of garden land have been set aside for use by unemployed in West Liberty, Beechview, Brookline, Lee and Banksville road districts, according to an announcement by the Rev. Henry E. Nicklen, chairman of the Beechview-Brookline Community Council.

The land will be divided into plots of approximately 3,000 square feet and plowed in co-operation with the city or the Allegheny County Emergency Association. Free seeds supplied by the American Red Cross will be distributed by the garden committee in each district.

Requests for these plots may be made at 1557 Broadway avenue, Beechview, between 2 and 5 p. m. and 7 and 9 p. m., 754 Brookline boulevard, Brookline, daily, and Friday, West Liberty School, West Liberty, all day Thursday, and Lee School from 2 to 5 p. m. Thursday.

MORE FAMILIES ASSURED AID

in spite of failure and all contingency," she said.

"The $100 per family which we are seeking to distribute over three months is practically no more than a meager help after all. It amounts to $33.33 per month, or $1.10 per day. For a family of five that means that each member must be maintained on approximately 20 cents a day, and surely no one will argue that that is luxury."

PASTOR SPEAKS

Speaking in behalf of the campaign in his morning sermon, the Rev. S. S. Lappan, pastor of the Central Christian Church, used as his subject the text: "He that hath two coats let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath food let him do likewise." He said in part:

"Every worthy man in Pittsburgh has a better right to one coat than any man has to two; and every worthy man has a better right to enough food and comfort than any man has to a surplus.

"Every family that helps another ought to visit that family and to render the help first hand. That would work a revolution in Allegheny County. The influence of the contact of 25,000 well-to-do families with that many unfortunate ones would live and throb among us for a thousand years after the food given has been eaten and forgotten. It is not relief we need in this desperate day so much as fellowship with one another."

20 AUTOS SAVED IN GARAGE FIRE

Three Glassport police officers and a fireman drove a score of automobiles to safety as fire partially destroyed the Davis garage on Monongahela avenue, Glassport, early today.

The blaze was discovered by Sergt. Jack Lees and Fireman James Iacone when a window crumpled in the garage a short distance from where they stood. Sergt. Lees sounded an alarm by firing his revolver. His shots attracted Police Chief E. J. George and Lieut. H. C. McCafferty.

The men forced entrance and removed a few dozen of the cars stored in the building. Damage was estimated at $10,000 by Thomas Davis, son of the owner.

Dying Wife Kills Her Husband to Avoid Parting

HOUSTON, Tex., April 11 (AP). — A woman facing death by disease shot and killed her husband here yesterday, saying she couldn't bear to go without him.

Mrs. Orvie P. Pease, 45, was charged with murder after the body of her husband, also 45, crate operator for a tool company, was found in the door of their home, a bullet wound in his back. Police quoted her as saying:

"I know I'm going to die and I wanted us both to go together. I couldn't bear to go without him."

SENATE PRUNES PRISON FUNDS

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP). — Drastic cuts in appropriations for penal institutions were made by the Senate Appropriations Committee in an economy move ordered by the Senate.

The Federal Industrial Institution for Women at Alderson, W. Va., suffered a slash from $326,500 to $300,000 and the regular maintenance funds for the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicothe, O., were reduced from $783,900 to $674,800. The construction allotment was set at $521,000 instead of $700,000.

A cut of $132,960 was made for Leavenworth Penitentiary.

Murder Charged In Boy's Beating

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 11 (AP). — The death of a 10-year-old boy whom police say he kicked and jumped upon caused Michael Yacobacci, 34, to be held today on a charge of murder.

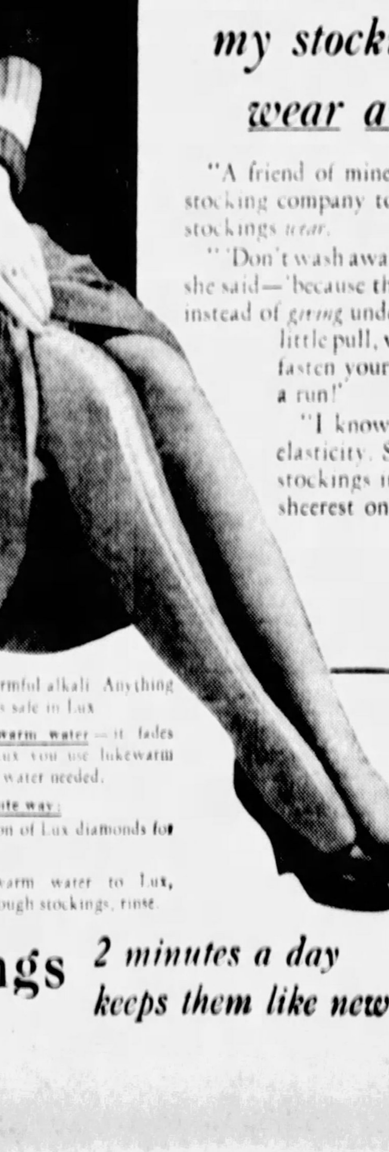
Police say Yacobacci beat Stephen Donatsko last December when an apple core, apparently thrown by one of a group of boys with whom the lad was playing, landed in his kitchen. The boy died yesterday in a hospital.

Taxi Driver Robbed By 3 Men in Park

Two confederates of the fare he had picked up in East Liberty held up and robbed E. F. Gaudill, a cab driver, of 340 Denniston avenue, as he drove in Highland Park this morning, according to a police report.

Gaudill said his passenger, after ordering him to drive slowly through the park, was met there by the accomplices. They took $18, he reported.

"I'm sunk—see this terrible run. Can you lend me a pair?"



"Sorry—I don't carry extras now—

...since I've learned about ELASTICITY* my stockings simply wear and wear"

"A friend of mine who works for a large stocking company told me how to make my stockings wear.

"'Don't wash away the elasticity of the silk,' she said—'because then the stocking threads, instead of giving under strain, break. The least little pull, when you bend, stretch or fasten your garters, and you've got a run!'

"I know Lux is made to preserve elasticity. So I've been washing my stockings in Lux and now even my sheerest ones wear!"

The Lux Way to save the* ELASTICITY that makes stockings FIT and WEAR

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens and fades silk. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

1. One teaspoon of Lux diamonds for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze through stockings, rinse.

For dishes, too

LITTLE GIRL WOULDN'T EAT

Yesterday she only toyed with her food—and of course Mother was a little concerned. But today, she has a bowl of Kellogg's Rice Krispies and milk—and just see the difference! Watch her dip right in with her spoon and enjoy every mouthful of that good, nourishing treat.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies actually crackle in milk or cream. The very sound fascinates youngsters. And how they love the flavor!

Serve for breakfast, lunch—fine for the children's supper. So easy to digest, Rice Krispies invite restful sleep. How much better than many hot, heavy dishes.

One Day Only!

Do hot foot it into Jonasson's tomorrow! It will be worth your while to hop a taxi, because for eight hours Tuesday you can pick up coats that should rate a much higher price tag than 14.85! Sketch A, for instance, tucks and tucks its sleeves to high priced distinction. Tomorrow, it's only 14.85. B is velveteen, underline that! Its slightly rippled oversleeves have golden Fitch on the velvet black. C thrusts its navy crepe through a red ring. D uses fluffy fur with a spendthrift's hand. Equipment Makers May Assume Major Role in Public Utility Control

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NEGOTIATIONS REPORTED [illegible]

Westinghouse Electric coming to the front [illegible] utilities [illegible] of the [illegible] Insull companies [illegible] Insull management [illegible] would change the [illegible] power of an [illegible] Insull [illegible] a shadow over the public [illegible] utility securities. In addition, there are other less important utility systems [illegible] difficulties similar to those of the Insull properties whose chances to get through their troubles will be materially increased if Insull can be saved.

Influence On Market Important Factor

THE MERE DESIRE to protect the credit of customers is not the only consideration. A large financial interest in a leading public utility system is an open door to the sale of equipment to that organization. This constitutes a further inducement to the electrical companies. In addition there is not such a great public fear and cry against the dangers of monopoly. The general attitude against relationships which might be traced to conspiracies in restraint of trade is vastly different than it was in the past.

As matters stand at present with some of the large utility systems a maker of electrical equipment with a large reserve of cash could obtain a financial foothold which would wipe up a major share of the future requirement requirements of the organization.

It seems reasonable to assume that the dangers of helping out the utility systems would not be as great as in the case of railroad field. The actual [illegible] operating companies have suffered less from the current depression than any of the other major industries. In nearly all cases the slump in gross revenues has been slight. Economies have prevented this from being greatly magnified in net incomes. It is only in holding companies controlling either holding companies which control other holding companies that the financial difficulties can be found.

But when the effect of a decline in the earnings and security prices of an operating company is transmitted through a series of holding companies each of which has preferred stocks and bonds outstanding it leaves little in earnings and less in equity for the securities of the organization at the top of the pile. The actual operating companies of the Insull group are not suffering. They have undergone only a minor decline as a result of the depression. The holding companies and the investment companies have interests in these holding companies as a result

Oil Men to Meet At Tulsa in June

NEW YORK, April 11 [illegible] of the American Petroleum Institute [illegible] marketing are being worked out by chairmen and secretaries for the 1932 mid-year meetings to be held jointly at Tulsa, Okla., in the Mayo Hotel on June 1, 2 and 3. Central location of the meeting place and the fact that all three divisions are to meet at the same time is expected to [illegible] the executive vice president of the Institute, to bring the largest attendance that has ever been present at a midyear meeting.

COMPANY SHOWS INCREASE

There is no depression in the markets supplied by the Moon-Shine Chemical Company of 1912 Flocker way and Brighton road, North Side officials said today. Their business has increased to such an extent recently that the company has had to add two more trucks to its delivery fleet, it was said.

The company for 10 years has manufactured and distributed Moon-Shine washing fluid, Moon-Shine pleasure cleaner, a water softener, and Moon-Shine insecticide.

The washing fluid which comes in the trade-marked blue quart bottle is for general laundry use and removes spots and stains without the clothing being rubbed or boiled, it was said. A quart of the fluid is sufficient for 20 gallons of water.

Solutions of the fluid may be used in cleaning refrigerators, vegetable pans, cupboards and garbage cans. Occasionally a cupful of the fluid should be used to deodorize drain pipes and washbowls.

Municipal Issues Smaller This Week

NEW YORK, April 11. New state and municipal financing scheduled for this week by 37 municipalities totals only $5,906,685 as compared with $45,589,223 during the past week, according to the Daily Bond Buyer. The weekly average of new bond offerings for the year to date is $22,064,135.

New Manchurian Government to Get Customs

WASHINGTON, April 11. The new government in Manchuria has formerly announced assumption of control of the customs, postal and salt monopoly administration from April 1, according to a radiogram received in the Department of Commerce Wednesday from Assistant Trade Commissioner Lewis C. Venator, Mukden.

A Chamber of Commerce survey at Mukden shows that 6,000 retail establishments were open on April 1 compared with 12,000 last August. Daily receipts reported by Mukden department stores are 45 per cent below figures for March, 1931, the radiogram stated.

The Chinese population at Mukden is still 20 per cent below last August. Through passenger trains from Mukden to Shanhaikwan began operating April 1 with close connections at Shanhaikwan for Peiping.

SENATE PROBE BULL FACTOR IN MARKET

Lawmakers Urged to Mend House Tax Bill in Effort To Improve Business Tone

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 11.—As soon as the financial public learned in the closing business day of last week that the August United States Senate had turned its talents to an inquiry into the misbehavior of the stock ticker, recalcitrant stock prices after eight sessions of disheartening declines reversed their dismal trend.

Unquestionably at this particular moment in the country's history there is little that the Senate could do which would prove more popular than to raise the prig level.

Mr. Rukeyser

The pre-panic bullish gestures from the executive branch of government which [illegible] stimulated speculative imagination are no longer effective in these chill dark days of widespread skepticism.

Accordingly in our inventive land, while reassuring statements from the executive side no longer prove available, the legislative branch offers bullish ammunition from an unexpected source namely, Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart of Iowa.

SENATE BALKS RAID

The Iowa overdue technical fails on Saturday was precipitated by the surprise announcement that the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency had subpenaed Richard Whitney to appear before it today with full data concerning recent short selling tactics. The committee seems especially anxious to know why stock and bond prices have declined so much recently.

Of course, scarcely any one feels any kindliness these days for speculators for the decline who are seeking to profit from the community's troubles; yet the wrath against the bears is analogous to anger toward the thermometer because it registers fever heat. The sensible way to punish the bears is to embark upon a co-ordinated program of effective co-operation between government and business which will arrest the destructive force of deflation.

For a time the half-way reconstruction program at Washington checked fears and improved financial sentiment. Meantime, however, there was no visible evidence in fundamental trade statistics of any improvement in business. As the optimists waited hopefully for a possible lag in trade gains, the House of Representatives upset the reconstruction applecart and gave way to a senseless tax revolt.

Acting in the spirit of the know-nothing party, the lower House endeavored to "soak the rich," but in reality unfortunately soaked the poor through endeavoring to discourage spending and employment of labor by the affluent.

TAX BILL CONDEMNED

If the Senate is interested in making stocks intrinsically more valuable as well as higher in price, it should not content itself solely with chasing bears. Its most immediately useful task in the matter of reviving faith, which is a necessary forerunner to recovery, would be to revise thoroughly the hodge-podge House tax bill.

It should recognize the fatuity of seeking to balance the budget in a manner which will further destroy and dry up the fountains and springs from which taxable income flows.

Turning away from government by hooey, the Senate should reinstitute the original program of the House Ways and Means Committee, including the moderate selected manufacturers' sales tax, for the ill-considered substitute adopted by the House itself. In its revision, it should drop some of the punitive, anti-prosperity measures aimed at business success, which Secretary Mills exposed, and should moderate the rise in the stock transfer tax, which will prove destructive to financial activity.

TWO LOCAL PENN MUTUAL MEN HONORED

Salesmen of H. J. Johnson Agency Made Officers Of Zone Leaders Club

James B. Eckenrode and Herbert W. Bailey, Jr., members of the Holgar J. Johnson Agency of the Penn Mutual, were recently honored by their company in recognition of their leading the entire sales force of the Penn Mutual in the number of lives insured during the first two months of the year.

Mr. Eckenrode was made vice president of the National Leaders Club organization, composed of the 6,500 representatives of the company. He has had a remarkable record inasmuch as he has been the leading producer in the local agency for four years and in that time has insured over 1,200 persons in the Pittsburgh district.

Mr. Bailey was elected to the vice presidency of the eastern zone of the Leaders Club which represents the entire sales force in the Eastern third of the United States. Mr. Bailey is one of the youngest leaders of the company and has been an outstanding member of the local agency.

Mr. Johnson, general agent of the Pittsburgh Agency, reports an increase in new business for the Pittsburgh office of 14 per cent during the first three months this year over the same period last year, although the district offices are not quite up to last year's record. This bureau's speaks well for the increase of insurance in the Pittsburgh district itself, and a recent report made by all the local agencies to the Research Bureau of the University of Pittsburgh shows an increase of all the reporting agencies during the first two months of 1932 of 4.9 per cent.

Belgium Favoring American Machinery

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Cash registers produced in the United States are regaining favor in the Belgium market, according to a report received in the Commerce Department from Assistant Trade Commissioner C. C. Price, Brussels. During the past 18 months, German manufacturers of cash registers materially increased the sales of their products, but due to the weakness of their competitive position the trend of sales is again favoring manufacturers in the United States, it was stated.

Joe Palooka, a comedy broadcast of the adventures of a clothing store clerk who falls into the heavyweight championship, will be heard over a Columbia network including WJAS starting tomorrow night at 6:45. Palooka is played by Ted Berkman, 200-pound Columbia actor, well-known to theatergoers here. The program, to be heard each Tuesday and Thursday night, is sponsored by the H. J. Heinz Company.

In an effort to make Pittsburgh the "Safest City in 1932," John S. Herron, president of City Council, speaks on the "National Traffic Safety Contest" over WCAE at 5:30 today, and Inspector Jacob Dorsey, of the traffic division, is on KQV at 4:30.

Phillips Lord resumes his broadcasts from the Bowery tonight at 10:30 over WCAE and as a result, the scheduled debut of Kay Donna, Pittsburgh, contralto, in a new program, has been postponed. NBC decided upon the change at the last minute after receiving widespread protests against discontinuance of Lord's Bowery programs. A new date for Miss Donna's series is expected to be announced soon.

Program Pointers

ELIZABETH LENNOX, NBC contralto, joins Phil Dewey, baritone, and Erno Rapee's Orchestra in a musical tribute to South Carolina when the Parade of States program is resumed over WCAE at 9:30 tonight. The young contralto sings "Mah Lindy Lou" by Lily Strickland, South Carolina's best known contemporary composer. A significant date in early American cultural growth is recalled when Rapee's Band plays the overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," which was first introduced to America in 1797 at a concert of the St. Cecilia Society in Charleston, S. C.

Miss Lennox

The concluding episode of "Doctor Dragonette" is presented by the KQV Players at 9. A hair-raising story of a mechanical man who runs amuck, "The Soul of a Robot," is their next presentation.

The Mills Brothers, in Pittsburgh today for a personal appearance, present a purely local program over WJAS at 6:45. They return to the East immediately following their performance to begin a new commercial series tomorrow night.

Question Box

Please settle an argument for me. I think there is a saxophone used occasionally during the Pickens Sisters' broadcasts. Am I right? What instruments do the Mills Brothers use in their programs?—E. R. O., Youngwood.

PIRATES READY FOR OPENER

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Long Pirate Holdouts. Offer May for Freitas.

Shafer Regrets Leaving. Milstead Lauds Booth.

MEINE BUC EXCEPTION IF HE QUITS

THE LIKELIHOOD THAT the Pirates will start the baseball season in St. Louis tomorrow with their leading pitcher of 1931, Heinie Meine, still a holdout, brings to mind some other instances in which Pittsburgh players remained on the unsigned list after opening day. Whether Meine will differ from the rest is yet to be seen, but the history of such cases locally has been that the dissatisfied athletes eventually came into the fold or meant so little to the club that they were released.

Heinie Meine

Meine himself was the player in the last previous case in which a Buccaneer prolonged a holdout beyond the start of the season. In 1929, when purchased from Kansas City for Pitcher Lester Bartholomew and a fat check, Heinie demanded a salary of $15,000 for his first year in fast company, held out until April 26 and did not get in shape to pitch until May 31. In 1925, Pitcher Vic Aldridge, obtained from the Cubs in the big six-player trade that involved George Grantham and Albert Niehaus in exchange for Rabbit Maranville, Wilbur Cooper and Charley Grimm, sought a salary fight until the race was under way, but all ended happily.

IN 1924 JOHN KELLEHER, after a report from Spartanburg, S. C., that during the winter refused to report. On May 5 he was released to Kansas City, but also declined to report there and retired. In 1922 Outfielder Walter Schmidt stayed out more than three months but came in at last on July 22.

First Baseman Vic Saier, awarded to Pittsburgh after a fight between the Pirates and Cubs for the right to his services, refused to report in 1918, changed his mind the following year, but couldn't get going in his own self-action until after his club layoff and quit the game [illegible] not to be allowed to own the P[illegible]

OUTFIELDER CHARLES JACKSON, obtained from Spartanburg in August, 1917, finished that season with the Rovers but held out in 1918 until he was released. In 1917 Honus Wagner had a retirement notion, but he finally came in on June 7, only to give up the game at the end of that campaign.

One local player to remain firm in a decision to stay out was First Baseman Joe Nealon in 1908, but that was not due to any financial differences with the club. Nealon was not a holdout, but belonged to a wealthy family and just made up his mind to quit. So if Meine carries out his threat to remain in retirement unless his demands are granted, he will be an exception in the list of Pittsburgh holdouts including his own of three years ago.

ONLY A FEW ball players since Bill Lange did it first in quitting the Chicago Nationals after the season of 1899 have been able to give up the game while they were still in their prime. It develops that at least one of them, Tillie Shafer, wishes he hadn't owned so much determination. Tillie admits he pulled a boner when he quit while a star third baseman for the Giants at the age of 24. "I could have stayed up another 10 years or more," Shafer moans. "Bill Terry is 33 and still going strong. There should be two ages—youth age, from 18 to 40, and the thinking age from 40 on. I'm 43 now. Would I go back to the Giants if I had another chance? Would I?"

Jakie May

SINCE THE DEPARTURE of Bud Teachout and Lester Bauerlein, the Cubs' only remaining left-hand pitcher is Jake May, and there is a possibility now that Jakie himself may be on the way out. At a 10-year mark he will command a transfer to the minors.

But if May goes, it will be only in a deal that will bring to the Cubs another southpaw. The Bruins and White Sox are bidding for Tony Freitas, Portuguese lefthander with Sacramento, who won 19 games for a weak club last season in the Pacific Coast League.

THE WHITE SOX offered $10,000 down for the pitcher and $25,000 more if they decided to keep him after June 15. The Cubs offered $20,000 and, though that was refused, Manager Hornsby thinks he can land the hurler by giving May in part payment, thus enabling Sacramento to fill the breach in its pitching staff.

A year ago the Yankees were interested in Freitas, but finally passed him up because of his lack of size. For a man of his proportions, Freitas has enormous hands. One of his favorite tricks is to hold seven baseballs with four fingers and a thumb.

DID YOU EVER try to estimate the speed at which a clay bird travels? The actual figures show the top-notch trapshooter to be even quicker of eye than is generally surmised. Alex Mermod, noted trap and fancy shooter of the old school, gives some interesting statistics on the subject. The total elapsed time from the instant a target leaves the trap until it strikes the ground is approximately 3½ seconds. The velocity of the target at the time it leaves the carrier is 55 miles an hour, and the speed rate goes down gradually, of course, during the flight.

AT FIVE YARDS it is 45 miles per hour; 10 yards, 41 miles; 15 yards, 40 miles; 20 yards, 39 miles; 25 yards, 38 miles; 30 yards, 35 miles; 35 yards, 31 miles; and 40 yards, 27 miles. Experts sometimes break their targets from 20 to 25 yards from the trap according to Mermod.

There are a few who break them closer, and too there are some very good shots who permit the target to travel farther, but setting the average at from 20 to 25 yards with the 16-yard rise, the total distance from the firing line at which the average clay bird is broken is 36 to 41 yards.

BUFFALO WINS OVER DETROIT BY FORFEIT

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE PLAYOFFS FINAL STANDING

	W.	L.	T.	G.	Ga.	Pts.
Buffalo	3	1	2	17	5	11
Windsor	3	2	1	11	8	10
London	1	3	3	5	10	8
Detroit	1	3	2	5	9	8

DETROIT, April 11 (AP)—Buffalo won the International Hockey League championship here last night, 2 to 1, when Referee Jerry Goodman and Mike Rodden declared the game between the Buffalo Bisons and Detroit Olympics forfeited near the end of the third period as a wild protest by fans prevented completion of the match.

Enraged fans hurled everything within reach on the ice after Goodman had ruled out an apparent goal by Leroy Goldsworthy that would have tied the score. After 20 minutes of bedlam, the teams were ordered off the ice and the game awarded to Buffalo. With it went the league championship.

POLICE CALLED

Several squads of police were brought to Olympia Arena when crowds milled around the officials as they left the ice after making their decision, but there was no serious disorder.

The forfeit was ordered after 18 minutes and 22 seconds of play. The officials disallowed the goal by Goldsworthy. Olympic wingman, on a charge that another player interfered with the Buffalo goalie. Buffalo was leading, 2 to 1, when the game was halted. Both officials were struck by eggs.

Detroit scored first. Newman, Olympic wingman, took a pass from Gagne in the second period to tally. Martin, Buffalo wingman, scored both goals for the Bisons in the third period. Fifteen penalties were called.

PREXIES UPHOLD REFS

Charles S. King, president of the International Hockey League, who was in the stands, agreed with the officials on the forfeit, and Charles E. Hughes, president of the Olympic Arena and owner of the Olympics, said he would not protest the decision. The lineup:

Buffalo—2 ... Detroit—1
Tancred ... G ... Vasko
Lederman ... D ... Kaese
Murray ... D ... Rosalchuk
Gagne ... C ... Mc
Cook ... RW ... Mc
Martin ... LW ... McCabe

Buffalo scores: Period, Team, Player, Assist, Time.

DAYTON QUINT A. B. C. CHAMP

DETROIT, April 11.—(AP)—The Jefferson Clothiers, of Dayton, O., are the 1932 champions of the American Bowling Congress.

Their sizzling 3108 scored Saturday withstood the bombardment of 64 teams on the closing squads last night and won for them the biggest honor in bowling. Five diamond medals and $1,000 in cash will go to the winners.

The Dayton lineup furnished the most brilliant finish ever known in the annals of national tournament competition. After registering games of 957 and 1028 the new champions went into the last game with only an outside chance of overtaking the Verifine entry of Milwaukee. Four of its five members struck out in the last frame and Harry Stewart, anchor man, chalked up the spare that put the Ohioans across the finish line by a scant seven pins.

OMAHA GIRL LEADER

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—(AP)—Marguerite Els, of Omaha, only 16 years old, rolled 622 for three games to take the lead in the singles competition of the Women's International Bowling Congress tournament.

Her score in the singles also gave her the lead in the all-events, with a total of 1696 for the team, doubles and singles play. Bessymone, of Cincinnati, was second in the all-events, with a total of 1681.

Chocolate Beats Abad To Retain Title

HAVANA, April 11.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, flashy Cuban boxer, retained his somewhat synthetic junior-lightweight championship here yesterday by outpointing Davy Abad, of Panama, in a 15-round bout.

The decision was unpopular with most of the 5,000 fans. Abad getting the larger share of the cheers after the rough and tumble battle. The Associated Press score card gave each fighter five rounds and called the others even.

HE'S LOST TO CUBS

WOODIE ENGLISH . . . BROKEN FINGER PUTS HIM ON BENCH

With the bell ringing on a new campaign tomorrow, the Chicago Cubs will be handicapped by the loss of their star shortstop, Woodie English, who has a broken finger that will keep him out of commission until late next month or early in June. Beginning with the last game of the 1929 season, English has played 313 consecutive games for the Bruins. Jurges will replace him in the lineup. Note the bandaged finger in the above International News Photo Service picture of the unfortunate player.

COLLEGE FLOOR CARD SET

By JESS CARVER

The very young Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball Conference, which was formed here last month by representatives of Pitt, Carnegie Tech, West Virginia, Temple and Georgetown, is all ready to function and needs only the advent of another court season to hop off. The schedule has been completed a 20-contest affair that will toss each member against every other twice, once at home and once abroad.

The first contest of the program will be played here in Pittsburgh next December 10 with the Panthers and Georgetown clashing. Further action will be deferred until after the holidays, when Carnegie and West Virginia and Temple and Pitt go to the post. The schedule will be completed with the playing of the second West Virginia-Carnegie Tech game in the Tech gymnasium March 14.

January 7, Carnegie at West Virginia.
January 9, Temple at Pitt.
January 10, Temple at Carnegie.
January 13, Temple at West Virginia.
January 16, Pitt at Carnegie.
January 21, Georgetown at Temple.
January 30, West Virginia at Pitt.
February 6, West Virginia at Georgetown.
February 13, Georgetown at West Virginia.
February 18, Georgetown at Carnegie.
February 20, Carnegie at Temple.
February 24, Pitt at Georgetown.
March 11, Carnegie at Georgetown.
March 12, Pitt at West Virginia.
March 14, West Virginia at Carnegie.

GENEVA GRIDDERS OUT

Howdy Harpster, former Carnegie Tech all-America quarterback star, now head coach of football at Geneva, calls his Covenanters aspirants together today for the initial session of spring football practice. Harpster plans to keep his Genevians at it for at least two weeks.

At Washington, Hank Day will gather his complete squad about him as the second week of spring drill opens for the Red and Black. Last week, the new Prexy mentor had his backfield men and centers out.

April 23, W. & J., here; April 25, Bethany, at home; April 29, Duquesne away; May 7, Westminster, away; May 11, Bethany, away; May 21, W. & J., at home; May 27, Grove City, away; May 28, Duquesne, at home; May 30, Westminster, at home; June 3, Grove City, at home.

Garden to Build New Arena for Schmeling Fight

By W. S. FARNSWORTH
International News Service

NEW YORK, April 11.—The Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling world championship heavyweight battle is going to be fought in Long Island City, June 16.

And it's going to be in a specially built arena put up by the Madison Square Garden Corporation, bigger than the Yale Bowl, capable of seating 85,000 people.

That quiets reports and plans that the Garden would build its outdoor fight plant near Jersey City, or that the championship battle would be held in one of the baseball parks.

'SQUEEZE PLAY' CAUSE

A "squeeze play" by the parks rushed the Garden into its decision. The parks wanted too big a golden egg, so the goose up and started a laying strike.

In past years, the baseball parks collected 10 per cent of the gate, with an additional 2½ per cent for heavyweight battles and championship events.

On the Milk Fund fight, when Sharkey and Schmeling met for the first time, the ball park rent went to $72,000.

For the second Sharkey-Schmeling go, rumor now has it, the parks, Polo Grounds, Yankee Stadium and Ebbets Field, had presented a solid front in demanding a bigger cut.

SITE IS SHIFTED

Then the Garden, flatly refusing to accede, began planning for a Jersey arena. That was believed to be a definite plan until the sudden announcement of the Long Island plan.

Soldiers Field, Chicago, can seat in excess of 100,000, but aside from that, the Long Island City arena will be the biggest fight plant in the country.

Ground was actually broken today on the new project. Three steam shovels and a big force of men went to work early and plans were filed with the building bureau of Queens.

Bowlers in Action In Two Tourneys

The annual Harry Votel tenpin tournament will get under way tonight on the Votel alleys, 204 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, and team competition will continue in the second annual duckpin tournament of the Greater Pittsburgh Alley Owners' Association, which got under way last week on the Elba Recreation alleys, 319 Fifth avenue.

Teams from Erie, Youngstown, Ellwood City as well as local quintets will bowl today in the Votel tournament.

Chick Evans Wins Mid-West Title

FRENCH LICK, Ind., April 11. (AP)—Best out of a field of 136, Chick Evans, veteran amateur of Chicago, yesterday won the first Mid-West Amateur championship on the difficult Hill course here with scores of 73-68-75 for a total of 216. He was eight strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, Bill Heinlein, of Indianapolis, Indiana State champion who had rounds of 76-74-74 for a total of 224.

Moser to Captain Penn State Quintet

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 11.—Penn State's 1933 basketball team will be led by Walter C. Moser, forward, of Allentown, who succeeded Fred C. Brand, Jr., of Sewickley, as court captain at an election held Saturday. Moser won a varsity letter as a sophomore last year and repeated again this season.

Italian Cup Team Wins Over Spain

NAPLES, April 11.—(AP)—Italy's Davis Cup tennis candidates won three of the four doubles matches played against a similar Spanish squad here yesterday. Italy had won all four singles matches played Saturday.

Stocks Sink Again — Local Market Quiet

STOCK MARKET TAKES FRESH DECLINE

U. S. Steel, American Can, Motors Among Shares Sinking to New Lows

NEW YORK, April 11—(AP)—The opening of the Senate's inquiry into the stock market was accompanied today by a resumption of the withering away of share values which has been in almost uninterrupted progress for five weeks.

Selling was not in particularly heavy volume and brokerage quarters generally said that short selling was negligible but steady liquidation fell upon a feeble market. By early afternoon there were numerous losses of 1 to 5 points and share price averages indicated another new low for the past decade.

Utility, food shares and miscellaneous industrials were particularly weak. Detroit Edison dropped 5 and Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey 3 points to new lows. Rails were under less pressure than some other groups but Santa Fe and Union Pacific dropped more than 4 points. In the food group National Biscuit, Continental Baking preferred, Beatrice and Borden sagged 2 to 4 to new lows. General Motors was a heavy feature, sagging more than a point to a new bottom close to 11, and Du Pont was carried down with it. United States Steel was off nearly 2 points, going fractionally below its previous minimum. American Can declined more than 2, going through last week's low.

Bears who have been nervous about being called before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and ordered publicly to reveal their positions in the market gained some comfort from the news that the committee would defer further investigation upon the completion of the examination of Richard Whitney, president of the exchange. Mr. Whitney's statement that the preliminary investigation indicated that the slump late last week was due to real liquidation rather than bearish activity confirmed opinions widely held in Wall Street.

The only reason given in financial quarters for the continued decline were the old ones: the failure of business to show the usual spring pickup, nervousness over federal taxation and the balancing of the budget, as well as the agitation for cashing the soldier bonus certificates, and the still troublesome conditions in Central Europe.

Narrow Price Movements Mark Dealings Here as Volume of Trading Ebbs

Trading this week opened quietly on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, with prices in most cases retaining the improvement in Saturday's short session. Lone Star Gas, leader of the market, was unchanged at the opening, trading at 4¼, but orders for shares taken on the break last week carried it down to 3½. Trading generally attributed to lack of distress

WHAT THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY MEANS TO THE PEOPLE OF PITTSBURGH

THE purchase, here or anywhere in the world, of American made automobiles contributes directly to the prosperity of the Pittsburgh District.

Industries in this section supply automobile manufacturers annually with many thousands of freight car loads of steel, bronze, aluminum, machinery, tools, bolts, screws, springs, wire, electrical supplies, sand, glass, coal, coke, limestone, brick, paint, enamels, oils, gasoline, and other products.

Therefore, the action of the Ford Motor Company in introducing at this time its new low priced eight cylinder car and promoting its sale by exhibitions throughout the country is calculated to help many lines of business in the Pittsburgh District.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

CHAPTER IV.

In silence we rode up the elevator shaft to the pent-house which Lola Carewe called her home—an aerie perched high in the New York skyline like the nest of some predatory bird. On the twenty-second floor our way led down a long, heavily carpeted corridor, mysterious in its dim light, to the foot of an iron stairs leading up to the pent-house door. Still without talk, we began the ascent of those steps. Four times the iron staircase turned in its climb to Lola's dwelling place. At each landing I noticed that Thatcher Colt held back the party while he turned first. Dougherty, puffing and blowing, kept pace bravely with him. Lola followed, with Vincent Rowland, Harris and myself bringing up the rear.

At the top of the stairs we found the detail from headquarters. In charge of the party was Lieut. Fallon, Colt's personal staff with Detectives Lansley and Schwartz and a group of lesser known men, with one of our girl operatives, Dorothy Lox, an ample, housewifely brunette later famous for her help to Colt in the Chinese Six Seven Murders case.

As Fallon saluted he reported:

"I got the building plans from the office downstairs. They think it's a burglar scare. We can guard every window and door of the penthouse except the ones that open on a sheer drop to the street, with plenty of men for the terrace and roof and you can use Miss Lox inside."

"Let me see the lay-out."

HEAVILY GUARDED

Waving aside the key Lola offered him, Colt rang the apartment bell. Fallon saluted and nodded toward the other detectives, who scattered toward the places assigned to them. All approaches to the penthouse were now under heavy police guard.

The door was opened by a short and rather stout Chinaman, with a completely bald head, and a face inexpressibly homely. The yellow man was wearing a house-robe of green silk, loose-flowing, girdled with a rope sash and ornamented with a pattern of dragons wrought in golden thread. Rich apparel for a man-servant. He was a bizarre apparition, our first encounter with Lola Carewe's singular household. I wondered if Colt would not compare him with a pensive sea-elephant in repose. Standing with his yellow hands folded at his thighs, and his large head slightly swaying from side to side, the Oriental butler said, evenly and distinctly:

"A happy new year to you, madame, after the custom of the 48 states of this independent country."

"Thanks, Chung!"

ROOMS OVERHEATED

The mistress of the penthouse seemed to accept her butler's orotund salutation as merely a casual greeting. I wondered if he pattered around these rooms all day long making heroic speeches like that. Or whether he was just another player in a show that Lola Carewe was staging—for what possible purpose?

We were in a small reception hall and the front door of the apartment had clanged shut, closing us in. The air was stifling warm. Later we were to find the whole apartment overheated. Chung took our wraps and waddled to a closet. We were about to follow our hostess down the broad corridor when the Commissioner said:

"Miss Carewe, you are not to be in any room alone at any time. When I cannot be with you, Miss Lox here must attend you."

With a martyr's smile, Lola agreed.

"I shall wish to make a tour of your apartment, terrace and roof. I want to see every room. Then I should like to meet all the members of your household."

STUDY PREMISES

"Mother awake, Eunice?" asked Lola quickly.

"And Christine?"

"Awaken my mother at once. Tell her not to worry, but the police are here. They may want to talk with her. Now, Mr. Colt"—as the maid darted off—"we shall begin your tour of my little home. This door leads out to the terrace."

The apartment formed an immense rectangle, two sides of which opened on the flagstoned terrace, now deep in slush. Borrowing a pocket torch from one of the detectives, Thatcher Colt led the way out into the raw and gusty night. The exploring circle of his electric lamp came to rest on the icy rungs of a perpendicular ladder fixed into the bricks of the nearest wall. Still in top hat and evening coat, the Commissioner quickly mounted the slippery ascent and reached the roof. Bent forward against the wind, he personally examined every square foot of the roof. Descending again, he traversed all the area of the terrace. But he found nothing. Indeed he could feel secure for there was not the slightest evidence in the slush of one human footfall. The area above and around the pent-house was empty in the clasp of the storm.

Shivering and wet, we returned inside, leaving a man on the sleety roof and two on the storm-swept terrace. Lola was at the door and led us down the corridor and into the living room.

We found the living-room a place of chaste elegance and angular splendor. The walls and fireplace made a discreet background for the furniture which, as Vincent Rowland revealed, had been specially designed by Lola herself. The four walls of that large chamber were covered with a heavy linen of natural hue, a light ecru color, the dull uneven weave of which seemed to smother the lamplight in a warm embrace. Nuns veiling draped the windows a little deeper than the color of the walls, and matching the upholstery of the chairs and couch. The velvet carpet of raisin brown was also without a sheen, so that the coverings of the furniture, walls and floor all held and subdued the illumination. There was an esthetic honesty everywhere apparent in the square lines of unfinished wood, waxed to give a mellow appearance of age. A real fire burned on the brick floor of the fireplace.

Standing by the fireplace to warm himself, Colt was about to light a cigaret, but suddenly he dropped the still lighted match into the fire. Then from the mantel the Commissioner lifted a crumpled white object in his hand.

You undoubtedly got more than a thrill out of the first big, satisfying installments of "The Murder of the Night Club Lady." If you really enjoyed these opening chapters you will do your friends a real favor by telling them about this tingling mystery story. It isn't too late to start the story, because the daily synopsis tells briefly but completely all that has gone before. Who killed Lola Carewe? Perhaps you can solve the murder as Thatcher Colt, super-detective, unravels the evidence.

Synopsis

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Doughertz. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. Following a spirited discussion, Lola sends a note to Colt, urging him to join her, stating that a life is at stake and she must speak with him. Colt joins her party. Lola voices the fear that she will not leave the Mayfair alive, adding that her dog and parrot were mysteriously killed. And, tonight, she received a note threatening death before 3 a. m. Accompanied by detectives and one woman operative, Colt goes with Lola to her apartment.

Now Go On

Trio Insists Madge Complete Play

"Why shouldn't I take my share in this thing with the rest of you?" I demanded as soon as Katherine had left the studio bungalow to return to the bedside of the wounded Chinese whom the surgeon was watching.

"Hello! what's eating you?" Dicky asked with a husband's privileged persiflage. "Here we've made everything smooth for the dray-ma, given it a wide, clear, empty road to roll along, and what do we find? The driver's trying to upset the cart!"

"I'm not doing anything of the kind," I protested, "and I'm awfully grateful to all of you for planning to give me my time, but it isn't fair to the rest of you."

"Suppose you let us be the judge of that, Lady Fair," Harry Underwood drawled. "Stop and think a minute. You couldn't do all the jobs we're tackling, and there's enough of the rest of us, so that each can tackle one. If somebody has to be left out, why shouldn't it be the person who for the next three or four days has the possibility of fame and fortune for the rest of her life if she sticks at the very ticklish job she has. No fooling, child!" as he saw my lips twitch at his extravagance—I mean just that. There isn't a keener judge of a play in two continents—and that's all there are dramatically than old Veritzen, and we all know what his verdict on your work is so far. If you have any kind of an idea that your family and friends here assembled, led by your loving husband, are going to let you play ducks and drakes with this chance of yours, you have a couple of dozen—or maybe a gross or two—more thinks coming."

MUST FINISH PLAY

"Hear! hear!" Dicky assented emphatically, smiling at me, and Lillian moved quickly to me and slipped her arm around me.

"Don't be foolish, dear," she said. "We all realize how you feel about it, and we all know how willingly and efficiently you'd help in either the nursing or any other job entailed by the presence in the house of this wounded Chinese. But can't you see that your job just now is to finish that play?"

I have finished it practically," I said stubbornly. "At least," I added more honestly, "I have the first draught completed."

"Thank the Lord for that!" Harry Underwood exclaimed. "I can imagine conditions more conducive to creative work than the one which we are facing at present in the farmhouse. But revision and polishing those are different matters, and yet from Philip Veritzen's standpoint, most important. I'll tell you what," as if with a sudden thought, "why don't you get busy on the thing right away—we'll all clear out pronto—and get it out of the way. Then if you have any leeway for playing nurse or nursemaid, you'll be free to do as you like. Come on, folks! Let's leave genius to burn!"

"Don't be an idiot just because you know how," I advised him, plagiarizing one of Lillian's familiar admonitions. "But I'll faithfully try to follow your advice."

A DIFFICULT TASK

"At'a girl!" he returned as he and Dicky moved toward the door, but Lillian hung back.

"I have an amendment, even if this question has been put to a vote and carried in the affirmative," she said. "There's one job that only Madge can do, and she'll have to do it immediately before she tackles her play."

"What's that?" Dicky demanded sharply. "What is there to do that someone else can't manage?"

"Stop flapping your wings, Dicky-bird, and listen to me," Lillian said. "Will you kindly inform me who else is to break the news to your mother that she's going to be chief baby tender for the next week or two?"

"Why—why!" Dicky stammered. "You said yourself that she'd eat it up."

"Of course, she will," Lillian retorted, "but she's got to imagine that she's granting a great favor to everybody in the house by taking over the job. Haven't you a photograph of her reaction to the bare announcement that we've decided she's to take care of the baby? No, my laddybuck, only Madge can do that little job and I'm a trifle doubtful of her success in it."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Alexander (Scotty) Farmer, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Farmer, 426 Oakland avenue, member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club and scout master of Troop No. 75, Boy Scouts of America, expects to leave Pittsburgh some time soon for Alaska as the guest of the United States government.

Alexander (Scotty) Farmer

Scotty, a student of Schenley High School, was born just a few miles from Edinburgh, Scotland, and has been a resident of this country for the last eight years. He entered the contest conducted by the United States government last fall and spent many long hours building a "totem pole" 30 inches high and four inches square. This "totem pole" is now in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C., where it was judged by the Department of the Interior.

PLAYS IN BAND

Aside from being scout master of Troop No. 75, Scotty is also a member of the Schenley Junior Komic Club Band, and is one of the favorite entertainers at the regular Saturday morning meetings of the Schenley Theater Junior Komic Club.

"Scotty" is looking forward with a great deal of excitement and interest to the trip to Alaska, and when he returns he has promised to tell all the boys and girls of the Junior Komic Club about the trip. The young members of the Schenley chapter are just as excited as "Scotty," and when he leaves he will have "orders" from nearly every member of the club for some kind of a souvenir to bring back with him.

Why Delay, Mr. Phillips?

If the Rate Reductions You Offer Are Right and Reasonable, the People Should Have Them Now!

When Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, offered recently to reduce electric light and bus rates, he conceded, in effect, if not in so many words, that these charges could be lowered without depriving his stockholders of a fair return on their investment. Why, then, should the rate reductions not be put into effect at once?

In answer to the popular demand that the utilities reduce prices as other concerns have done, Phillips proposed to lower the light rate about 10 cents a month for the average domestic consumer, and to lop a trifle more than two cents from the cost of a bus ride, now 25 cents, by selling five tickets for $1 as against nine for $2. It is inconceivable that he would have proposed these reductions if it would have imposed a hardship on his companies. Having thus virtually admitted the reasonableness of lower rates, Phillips is unreasonable in continuing to charge the higher rates.

Phillips' offer was made to City Council, and he gave the public to understand that it was conditioned on Council's agreeing not to sue for lower rates before the Public Service Commission. But whether the city sues or not has no bearing on the question if Phillips' companies can afford to make the reductions he offers or if the people are entitled to them.

Council, after learning something about the financial condition of Phillips' companies and about the rates charged by similar companies in other cities, has rejected his offer as inadequate, and may order legal proceedings if greater reductions cannot be obtained without them.

Phillips might soften public resentment, and would be doing no more than is right, if he would make the cuts he proposed immediately, without regard to what Council may do.

Loans for Farmers

The announcement was made at Harrisburg a few days ago that arrangements had been concluded by which Pennsylvania farmers could borrow up to $400 from the Federal Government under the 1932 Crop Production Loan Fund.

The loans, bearing 5½ per cent interest, can be obtained by giving a judgment note and posting a notice that the borrower's crops are under mortgage to the Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde.

The scant attention attracted by this announcement bears witness to the favorable position of Pennsylvania farmers. With diversified crops they are well off, in comparison with the one-crop farmers of certain sections of the West and South.

We are likely to see a "back-to-the-farm" movement in Pennsylvania this year.

Aluminum Vindicated

An Important Local Product Is Given a Clean Bill of Health by Mellon Institute Tests.

The Mellon Institute of Industrial Research investigates all sorts of things. Many of its findings are of interest only to scientists, but occasionally there is found in its reports something that is of direct concern to nearly everyone. Such a report is that which the institute has just issued on its experiments in cooking with aluminum utensils.

The institute has put to the test the widely circulated myth that it is deleterious to certain kinds of foods to cook them in aluminum vessels. It has cooked chicken and coffee and tomatoes and sauerkraut, cranberry sauce and apple sauce and apple butter and lemon pie filling, and various other comestibles in aluminum vessels, and then subjected them to chemical analysis.

Some of the foods, it is found, pick up infinitesimal quantities of aluminum in the process of cooking. But it is also stated that the aluminum content of the original foodstuffs of a balanced diet is 40 per cent greater than the amount added by cooking them in aluminum vessels.

In short, cooking in aluminum is harmless, and the rumor to the contrary is a libel. It is gratifying that an important local product should be thus vindicated.

Work for Prisoners

Mayor McCloskey, of Johnstown, Has a Good Idea, But There Are Difficulties in the Way.

Mayor McCloskey, of Johnstown, is "tired of having the city jail used as a boarding house" and is going to make the prisoners work. He plans to employ them on tasks for which the city now has to pay, and to apply the money saved to poor relief.

Mayor McCloskey has a good idea—one of which penologists will approve. It is bad for prisoners to be kept in idleness. It is an imposition on the taxpayers to make them support in idleness a multitude of able-bodied rogues.

But there are difficulties in the way of putting prisoners to useful work. It may mean depriving well-deserving free men of their jobs. It may bring the products of convict labor into competition with the products of free labor. When the prisoners at the Allegheny County Workhouse were put to work some 50 years ago manufacturing barrels for the oil trade scores of cooperage concerns in the Allegheny Valley had to go out of business, as they found it impossible to compete with the prison-made barrels.

THE HEARST PAPERS ADVOCATE:

2—Proportional representation in the United States Senate—no state to have less than two Senators.
5—Army, Navy and Aviation—all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
6—Vigorous federal action under a Secretary of Education to abolish illiteracy in the United States.
7—Federal sales tax and excise taxes to replace the income tax which has degenerated into a racket.
9—Construction of Nicaragua Canal for commerce and defense, advocated by Hearst papers since 1895.
10—Acquisition of French and English West Indies as part payment on debts to United States.
11—Selective immigration to admit only those suited for American citizenship and American needs.
14—A calendar year of 13 months of four weeks each, all holidays to fall on Saturday.
15—A five-day working week or a six-hour working day to provide more jobs and better conditions for workers.

"Dance, Durn Ye, Dance!"

* * *

The dry bloc Congressmen of both major parties, who deserted their House leaders to heed the false pleas of demagogues, are the ones who defeated the soundly conceived, safe, easy to collect and least burdensome sales tax.

The Senate can come to the rescue of the country if it will.

William Randolph Hearst, in a signed editorial appearing in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers of April 7, said:

"Gentlemen of the Senate, a simple and practicable economic program, equally for the benefit of the Government and the people, is in no way difficult to conceive or to execute.

"Increase postal rates as proposed and reduce Government expenses to what they were (interest excepted) before the Great War.

Please note the "ha ha" boys backed up to the bar. They are having a lot of fun. They do NOT pay any taxes.

A Scandal of Finance

By JULIUS G. BERENS
Financial Editor, New York American.

NOW it is announced that Ivar Kreuger, Sweden's greatest financier-promoter, "grossly misrepresented" the true position of his companies.

Yet these fictitious, false and manipulated figures and facts were utilized by Kreuger's American bankers as selling arguments which induced American investors to purchase an estimated TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS of Kreuger's securities.

In circulars which they issued inviting investors to purchase Kreuger's bonds and stocks, the bankers said:

"The statements contained in this circular, while not guaranteed, are based upon information and advice WHICH WE BELIEVE ACCURATE AND RELIABLE."

NOT until Kreuger's spectacular suicide do these same bankers now proclaim "the statement" (of independent auditors who have just completed the first phase of their examination into Kreuger's affairs) "reveals serious irregularities which have hitherto been concealed only by the most flagrant misrepresentation."

The bankers who were responsible for luring hundreds of millions of dollars of American investors' money into Kreuger's practically worthless issues, now naively assert:

"These misrepresentations were made not only in the written statements and information furnished by Mr. Kreuger as chairman of Kreuger & Toll to the public and to his fiscal agents in the United States, but also in the report of Kreuger & Toll published in April, 1931, covering the previous year's operations, which report was verified by auditors appointed under the company's statutes.

"While these facts are subject to elaboration and confirmation in detail the above statements (the auditors' remarks) must be accepted as evidence that gross frauds have been perpetrated by Mr. Kreuger in connection with his company's affairs."

THE very bankers whose super-salesmanship enticed American investments in these fraud-tainted securities, now publicly confess they accepted at face value the Swedish promoter's fraudulent statements.

To guarantee the statements they would have had to investigate and find out the facts. But to sell the securities without guaranty or investigation or any kind of caution let the American investors hold the bag while the bankers joyously corralled the commissions.

And BELIEVE IT OR NOT, these selfsame bankers now propose the formation of "protective committees" for unfortunate American holders of Kreuger's skyrocketed promotions.

Do they refer to the right of holders with respect to bankers' statements? Do they plan making retribution to the unfortunate security holders?

NO investor possibly could have undertaken survey of Kreuger's world-wide pyramid. They trusted in the bankers' integrity, in the belief the bankers at least refused to accept at face value the assertions of an individual recognized in his earliest exploits as a vast promoter, a globe-encircling visionary.

In the light of events, the banker's assertion " . . . accurate and reliable" becomes an empty phrase. But it shrieks from the housetops the lack of protection to investors accepting such worthless assurances. A similar statement is contained virtually in every bankers' prospectus to investors.

Bankers seek thereby to remove legal entanglements. The phrase specifies—if investors will but realize it—that nothing more than a perfunctory examination might have been undertaken by bankers whose main interest lies in commissions obtained.

Truly, the Kreuger affair is an epic commentary on the placid, trustful nature of the American investor which has made possible such horrible examples of high-finance.

THE bankers have written their own indictment. Their admission of flagrant misrepresentations and serious irregularities, falsifications, etc., in Kreuger's accounts serve only to emphasize their own guilt.

And what of the Stock Exchange, which permitted its facilities to be employed in distribution of Kreuger's securities?

Even up to the very day of his suicide, additional thousands upon thousands of certificates, representing ownership in the European securities, were being transferred to the exchange list and sold to Americans. Did the exchange, too, eagerly accept Kreuger statements and bankers' statements, without the exercise of its much vaunted listing safeguards?

Or was the exchange satisfied with the assertion of one of its own member firms? . . . "The statements, while not guaranteed, are based upon information and advice which we believe accurate and reliable?"

His house of cards has collapsed.

How to Be a Woman-Charmer

What nerve I have to write on this topic—"How to Be a Man-Charmer!"

* * *

It was far easier for me to give men a few points on "How to Be a Woman-Charmer"—because I'm a woman, and naturally I know what masculine qualities get the feminine heart going on all cylinders. But I can only guess what it is that stirs a man's fancy and makes his head go 'round.

* * *

One thing is CERTAIN, however. The surest and easiest way to charm a man is NOT to TRY!

Ever observe that it is always the man whom you scarcely noticed at the party who rings you up next day? Never the one that you laid yourself out to "slay?"

* * *

Beverly Nichols "the bored-but-beautiful" avers that the One Big Secret of all great sirens is that they know how to do NOTHING. They never ask a man, directly or indirectly, to make love to them. They keep their POISE.

* * *

Next to poise, among the assets of the man-charmer, comes style. Clothes and good grooming are a woman's "show-window." Clothes have a great deal more to do with charming a man than actual beauty. Lots of men look at a woman's shoes, before they glance at her face. And nothing so thrills a man as to be seen trailing a woman who "looks like a million dollars."

You can charm a man with a ready laugh and a spontaneous smile. It doesn't matter whether you laugh in the right places or not. But every man likes a woman who is as cheerful as a daffodil, and runs from one who is bored or soured or cynical. Every man prefers May to November.

* * *

And, of course, you can always charm a man, just as he can charm a woman, by playing "audience," by listening while he talks about himself, by passing out the applesauce and applause. By asking for his ADVICE and his "judgment." By AGREEING with him that the world is flat or that "the sun do move" or that the moon is made of green cheese. By giving him all the big scenes and long speeches and limelight.

* * *

* * *

All the brains, beauty and fine character in the world never charmed a man like a combination of poise, sweet indifference, smart clothes, buoyant spirits and a sympathetic EAR. Alas, if a woman could only be STILL, sometimes silent . . . and always Cheerful!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 11.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Came young Will Hearst and took the Sealyham for a gay holiday down Long Island way. Then breakfasting with Don McIntire, the cinema chieftain, and much talk of the studios, of Quinn Martin, and this and the other and so to my typing.

In the afternoon to Town Hall to hear my talented co-slave of old print shop days, Mayor Russell Wilson, talk of city management in his native Cincinnati. And bravely spoke, too. So walking with Will Lengel, the editor, along the avenue and for a beaker of orange juice at Hick's.

* * *

Bill Hamilton, well known in banking circles as well as the literary circus, is ensconced in what is likely the most unusual bachelor home in town. He took over an old stable on West Nineteenth street and by the magic of the interior decorator's art converted it into an early American dwelling that might have been transplanted from the Connecticut countryside. An ivy-clad lintel is graced with a shiny brass knocker and foot-scrapers. Other sentimentalities of the golden years include rag carpets, a blazing open hearth, leaded windows and a tiny garden slit with cool graveled paths.

* * *

That slightly bald fellow, who walks furiously through Broadway's bright coast of lights, winter and summer, clad only in thin armless undershirt, duck shorts and sneakers, is Anthony Schafini. His costume weighs 9 ounces. O, yes, Mr. Schafini is authoring a health book. Genius mocking conventions!

* * *

My casual indifference to crooners is likely born of petty jealousy. Plus a definite neurosis popping out a sweat when hearing a nasal twang in the human voice. Most crooners to me seemed so many young and frustrated Casanovas, garlanding marcelled hair with rose petals, and singing torch tunes to servant girls. I find one notable exception to such heresy, at least. And thus do I scatter a few huzzas for Russ Colombo.

* * *

I went to hear Colombo recently in a mood decidedly arbitrary. I have noted the effect on charming ladies by the Colombos of the world when sitting among them. Yet fairness, coupled with a desire to fill a column, pries off the admission Colombo is an extraordinarily engaging young man. Perhaps all crooners are. There was about Colombo, the faint glow of spiritual incandescence often noted among young priests. He was mottled with bewilderment over the sensation his personal appearance created. A skilled violinist, he is the most versatile and by far the handsomest and best dressed of the pack. Ladies sighed over his slumbering eyes and the bird-like flutter in his throat as he mooed. I was especially impressed by his effort to hide a whipping nervousness that created a palsied shake. I have such tricky nerves myself. And when put to it, do I shake!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Should we know the truth about war? Should we know what war does to men—to their bodies and their spirits?

Should we learn about lice and gangrene, wounded men shattered and maimed for life, men with faces that must be forevermore veiled, lest they drive those mad who see them?

War does these things to human life—and worse. Should we face such facts before we vote for another war?

Or should we continue to pretend that war is a matter of gallant dreams, of waving flags and singing drums and brave boys marching straight to glory?

If it were YOUR boy whose face is to be shot off in 1938—what would YOU say?

A leading book publishing house believes that you should know exactly what war is going to do to your boy.

So they have published a book of photographs entitled "The Horror of It." It is a terrible book. Not everything is shown. There are things which it is not possible for any book to show. But there is as much there as you can bear.

Holes that hang to a splinter of bone. Tags that flap beneath matted hair. Quivering lumps, breathing through tubes, carried like butcher's beef on trays. Once these were men. Still they live on, and on.

AS YOUR BOY, YOUR BROTHER, YOUR HUSBAND MAY LIVE SOME DAY, IF WAR ISN'T STOPPED. BUT DO YOU WANT TO KNOW ABOUT THAT?

The publishers of this book think you do. They think that maybe war will become extremely unpopular if you do know about that. Never will you thrill at the sight of war banners if you see behind them a face without a throat, or a nose.

But you shouldn't be allowed to know about that face, says the U. S. A. War Department, who refused to lend any of their filed photographs.

"To give out such pictures," said Maj. Gen. Irving Carr, speaking for the department, "would be against public policy. It would not be ethical; it would not be decent. Think of the Gold Star mothers the country sent to France! Over there they saw the lovely cemeteries in which lie the dead of the A. E. F. Perhaps their boys lie there. The mothers carried home in their minds beautiful pictures of these well kept resting places."

Yes? I wonder!

I wonder if the gentlemen of the War Department really know what a Gold Star mother carries in her mind.

Do they honestly think that the sight of a little tidy grass, a nicely painted cross, can erase from a mother's heart the memory of a helpless baby body; can bar from her imagination the thought of that precious flesh, riddled, raveled into a shrieking death?

And what of those other mothers who must some day wear a gold star unless war comes to an end? Are they, too, to be fooled by lawn mowers and whitewash brushes, give the flesh of their flesh to provide fertilizer for lovely landscape gardening?

Or shall we now rise in their defense; strip away the gilt and the garlands; show the noseless face, the shattered skull, behind the waving banner, and so, perhaps, save their boys from war?

Text For Today

—Romans, viii:32.

He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Irrespective of whether your words sting and hurt another you will not leave unsaid the things that you wish to say.

But really it takes a much stronger character to refrain from utterances which may be cruel though they may be true.

Nearly everyone has vulnerable spots that when hit cause pain.

Consideration should be given to sensibilities in dealing with a person who is likely to suffer because of what you term your "frankness."

If people in general were not tempering their conversation with most of those with whom they make contact there would be a general upset in the human family.

What have you ever gained by the "frankness" you profess?

How do you like those who speak to you in an uncomplimentary manner?

Why don't you treat others as you would have them treat you?
